

Personal profile

Emanuela Ignatou-Sora is a 5th year researcher at the European University Institute (Law Department), where she is finishing her thesis on: 'La construction d'un régime juridique pour la protection des Roms'.

Previously, she received a master of research at the EUI (2006), a Master of research in European law (2005) at the Université Jean Moulin (Lyon, France), and a Master in Human Rights law (2005) at the Institut des Droits de l'Homme (Lyon, France).

She specialized in Minority Rights, but she is equally doing research in European law, Human Rights law, and Transitional Justice.

She has recently published a book, with Beck Publishing House (Bucharest, 2008) on the Principle of equality and nondiscrimination in the case-law of the European Court of Justice.