International Law Working Group

Department of Law, European University Institute

ABSTRACT

The International Law Working Group (ILWG) is open to all members of the EUI wishing to engage with questions related to international law. Members of the ILWG meet once a month to chat informally about their research and developments in international law. In addition to monthly meetings, the working group convenes regular lectures, workshops and a reading group with the aim of enabling EUI researchers and visitors to learn from each other and exchange ideas.

The IL WG is a continuation of the International Criminal Law Working Group established in 2002 at the initiative of Prof. Pierre-Marie Dupuy, and is currently supported by Professors Neha Jain and Sarah Nouwen.

To meet with us, to learn more and to join our mailing list, message us at international.law.wg@eui.eu.
