This was my favorite course this semester

Student 6
The instruction was mostly reading the slides to the class, i could gain the same knowledge by reading the slides on my own at home. There wasn't much further explanation of concepts other than what was on the slides

Student 8
the instructor seemed very dependent on his slides and did not contribute much outside of them

He was a great teacher and clearly explained everything. He wasn't very open to office hours and wasn't very approachable.

Absolutely loved Professor Menno. He is so knowledgeable and made the course interesting, ensuring that all of our readings were relevant to lectures and exam.

Student 14
I like the visiting professor, Dominik Menno a lot. He explains the class material very clearly and is willing to help students at all times. The material itself was very difficult though, and there were questions in the exams that we either didn't learn in class or there were not enough practice exams to help us.

Very detailed. A little rushed at times because of many slides we had to get through. Overall very good!

Student 19

I feel like there was a lot of simply reading off the slides during lecture.

Materials are somewhat intense and information base that there are not much room to test students' analytical skills/concepts on economic issues, but instead memorizing an amount of materials.

The teacher is well planned and organized. However, very little explanation during lecture because the pace is very fast and he blows through material. Study questions are very helpful though and syllabus is very clear and structured!

Student 32

Dominik was great in class and in office hours

Decent. Mostly just reading off the lecture slides, but every once in awhile there was a helpful comment.

From day one, I couldn't tell you the goal of this class. It was all over the place. The in class lectures had nothing to do with exams, the readings had nothing to do with the exams. It was very hard to figure out what to study for throughout the course, even with attending office hours.

Student 42

The course was very interesting but it would have been nice if the instructor was able to answer more questions in class and/or provide more study resources outside of class.

Good! Good instruction by lecturer passionate about topic

Student 51

I think the instructor sufficiently discussed all necessary materials.

I enjoyed the course as it was nice to see the international perspective of economics. Although there were times when the professor became confused at times, he was knowledgeable of the information. I think that it would be nice if the lectures were straight off of the slides so that it would be more interesting.

The professor did not seem to know much about the material he was teaching. I stopped attending lecture because I found that listening to him read the slides off of the projector did not help me learn the material. All of my learning happened outside the classroom in group study.

Instructor did not seem very knowledgeable about course material and did not teach it in an effective manner. Lectures consisted of instructor reading directly from powerpoint slides (word-for-word) and when asked questions about the material, he often responded with "I do not know". Additionally, instructor refused to answer questions about course material in his office hours until later on in the term.

Sometimes explanations were cyclical and confusing. Decent overall.

Student 65

I loved the course. One thing I would like to see change is having more difficult exams so more differentiation between students can happen.
