

- Home
- About Crossroads
- Links
- Newcomers Handbook
- Guestbook

- Agenda tips
- Feature articles
- News
- Reviews
- Through the lens

Browse > Home / European news / Website to help Europe decide

Website to help Europe decide

April 17, 2009

With the European elections now just a little over seven weeks away many voters are still undecided as to which party to vote for on June 7. The EU Profiler website hopes to make the choice easier for the millions of Europeans voting.

By answering a simple questionnaire, users will obtain a presentation of their policy preferences which allows them to compare their preferences to the positions of all of parties standing.

The EU Profiler provides multiple options for further analysis of the political position of the user. The results are displayed in a party match, a two-dimensional graph and in a multidimensional spider web graph.

The tool enables the user to reflect, discuss and analyse his or her political preferences and to position him- or herself in the European political landscape.

The EU Profiler will be available for all EU Member States and in all EU languages from the end of April.

Source: Flanders News, 16 April 2009

Filed Under: European news

Call for writers

Would you like to write for Crossroads? Click here for more information

Featured Video: Photo exhibit: Pigs in Distress

Pigs in Distress is an advocacy group that promotes better treatment of pigs. Their most recent campaign is a photo exhibit, illustrating the contrast between the living conditions of pigs bred en masse for their meat