

Worth a look – six political articles worth reading today

On Elliot Morley, Labour's future, the EU elections, the local elections, the next Speaker, and a Twitter tsar

Holly Watt and Robert Winnett in the Daily Telegraph explain in detail how Elliot Morley claimed £16,000 for a mortgage that no longer existed.

Jill Sherman in the Times reports that Labour could be all but wiped out in the south of England after next month's local elections.

John Rentoul at Independent Minds on Vote Match EU and EU Profiler, two websites that allow you to fill in a quiz to find out which party has the EU policies that you most support.

Martin Bright in the Spectator says Labour has "three weeks to save itself from oblivion".

Kerry McCarthy, the Labour MP, explains on her blog why she wants John Bercow to be the next Speaker.

The Daily Telegraph reports that the government has hired a £160,000-a-year "Twitter tsar".

Next

Previous

Blog home

guardian.co.uk © Guardian News and Media Limited 2009