Its OK for you in the Soputh East- as you said, you've got Dan Hannan. I've got Robert Atkins at the top of our list.

My nearest match is some incomprehensible Greek party which I suspect to be of the BNP persuasion.

The whole business is very depressing.

Heil Spode!

I think this is the first time ever I've been able to answer every single question in a poll with a "very strongly" either in favour or against.

None of this "don't know" or "mildly agree" crap.

And it turns out I should vote for List Dedecker (Flemish Belgium). Sounds good to me.

Hannan-one very good apple in so many money grabbing bad ones.

BNP for me, I would never vote for them so I guess my initial Tory voting intention stays true

I love the old "If you vote UKIP you let labour back in".

When will people wake up and see that the Labour, the Lib Dems and the Tories are all the same party no difference between them.

Plus "Call me Dave" has only pulled your Tory group out of the EPP so that you blind sheep will vote for him.

UKIP all the time for me!.

Halfway between UKIP and the Tories. However I will be voting conservative in this and the general election.

Iain - you are very lucky to be able to vote for Dan. Wish I could!!

Manif... and the BNP... as he... recommended that...

my wife got the BNP as her recommended choice.

She's of Indian (sub-continent not red) descent.

"But like you computer said UKIP but I'm voting Conservative since Cameron fulfilled his pledge on the EPP."

Errr Wrong!

The Tories are still in the EPP!

Note the section highlighted. How can the UK have a democratic say in the EU when it can be outvoted on any and all issues which do not suit other member states. IT CANNOT.

The tories are pro-EU, as are NL and Lib Dem. The minor parties threatening major party seats for UK in EU are UKIP and BNP with letter of concern. UKIP is the logical choice to
