Teaching and Academic activities:

At UPF, you will be assigned your own supervisor specialized in your area of research. He / She will accompany you during all your stay at UPF.

Before you come, you will receive an individualised program made by your supervisor. This program includes academic, teaching and social activities.

The academic activities consist of attending seminars or classes, visiting teachers working in your field of research and participating in various activities that may occur during your stay in the department of your expertise.

You will have the opportunity to teach two lessons, either at the bachelor's or master's degree level. Both classes will be held in a real classroom situation at the department, which will be agreed beforehand. The two lessons will be in English and should last between 1 and 2 hours.

Your supervisor will be in the classroom while you teach and he/she will give you feedback about your teaching after the lessons.

Usually your supervisor will contact you, but also you can get in touch with them before your arrival. That way you can fit in your preferences to the possibilities of the department.

Social activities:

You can participate in the welcome reception, as well as the farewell in which also supervisors and university authorities take part. At the welcome reception, you will also receive documentation and information regarding your stay in Barcelona.
