Elena Brizioli - Electronic Resources Librarian

2 September 2016
Change of Library Management System

New discovery tool
Implementation of new discovery tool: Articles+.

Temporary suspension of service
For a couple of days some services may be suspended, such as being able to borrow or place a hold on a book.

New Library catalogue and book delivery service
All services will be back to normal.

The Library catalogue will have a new look and functionalities.

At this time the Library will launch the new delivery service: pick up locations will include Villa Salviati, Villa La Fonte, Villa Schifanoia.

Catalogue to search for Book & eBook titles

Print and electronic books are usually presented in separate records in the Catalogue.

TIP: If a book is checked out, click “Place Hold” to request the book.
Catalogue to search for Journal and eJournal titles

Print and electronic journals are usually presented in separate records in the Catalogue.

TIP: The years available for a journal may be different for print and electronic copies – Check both records for complete holdings information.
Full-text access is limited to the dates provided – even if more years are listed on the provider’s platform.

Links to full-text will work from on- and off-campus.

TIP: Remember that the Library may also have print holdings for years not available in full-text. See the print record for details.
Catalogue to search for Databases

If you know the title of the database you want, a search in the Catalogue is the quickest way to locate it.

In this example, the keyword search matched 3 records: 2 databases and one book.
Articles+ is a search engine that allows for in-depth searching across a wide range of our e-resources, including journal articles.

Whenever possible, Articles+ results include links to full-text using EUI LINKS.

Bibliographic Citation Databases

Articles+ is not intended to entirely replace other search tools such as the bibliographical databases listed here, however we hope that it will be a much-valued addition to your research tools.
I found an article citation in a database ... can I get to the full-text as with Articles+?

The EUI LINKS button in bibliographic (article) databases offers links to full-text, when available from the EUI Library. EUI LINKS is an OpenURL resolver.
EUI LINKS appears automatically in Google Scholar from on-campus computers.

Accessing E-Resources

How to Access E-Resources

On-campus Access: EUI members and visitors

Most of the Library's electronic resources are available from any EUI computer.

EUI members and visitors may also use personal laptops connected to the EUI Network to access e-resources.

For additional information, including how to configure access using your laptop, please refer to the following:

- Using Computers in the Library (full details)
- EUI Network Connections (LAN, WIFI)
- eduroam Network (Note: Visitors using the eduroam Network are not entitled to access the EUI Library's licensed e-resources)

Off-site (remote) Access: Current EUI members only

Off-site (remote) access to the Library's electronic resources is restricted to current EUI members (researchers, fellows, faculty and staff).

Off-site users will be asked to login with their name and Library barcode in order to verify their current EUI Library status and right to access electronic resources.

EUI members' remote access to licensed e-resources is suspended when the overdue fines limit has been reached or when the Library account has expired.

Additional Information

- Terms and Conditions of Use for Licensed Electronic Resources
- Library Copyright Policies
- Electronic Resource Access Problem Report Form

The Library's web pages and Catalogue can be accessed by anyone from anywhere using any standard browser.

VPN Remote Connection offers EUI members a secure connection to the EUI's private network.
Accessing E-Resources from Off-Campus

Most e-resources can be accessed from anywhere with the secure proxy.

Your Library Code: 14-digit code on EUI ID Card.
Your Surname: same as listed on your EUI ID Card.

Problem with login? Let us know by using our Online Problem Form.
Terms & Conditions of Use – part 1

- Use of e-resources is governed by copyright laws, license agreements and providers’ published Terms of Use
- All EUI users must abide by copyright laws and the Terms of Use
- EUI users who violate the Terms of Use may lose access rights to the Library’s e-resources
- Misuse could result in access being blocked for all EUI users

Contact Library staff if the Terms of Use or access restrictions are not clear.
Users must not...

• share logins or passwords
• use content for commercial purposes
• modify or create a derivative work based on licensed e-resources without permission
• Systematically download, distribute or save substantial portions of content. This means you should not...
  • Rapidly download large amounts of tables of contents, search results, citations, data output or full-text content
  • Download entire ejournal issue or volume, an entire ebook (unless expressly allowed) or a database
  • Use a robot or any automated program to download content

If you need extensive content from a licensed resource for your research, contact Library staff for assistance prior to use.
Reporting Access Problems

If you encounter situations such as:

• Login with Library code and surname does not work
• Full-text not available - contrary to info in the Catalogue, Articles+ or Primo
• Unable to print, download or save file from Library e-resources as expected
• Broken link in the Catalogue, Articles+ or EUI LINKS

..... Use the Library’s Online Problem Report Form!

Provide enough information for Library staff to replicate the problem situation, including:

• Full citation of article you are unable to access
• URL of page not working
• Any error messages received

Do not contact the EUI Help Desk for access problems related to Library e-resources – Use the Library’s own form.
