FOREWORD FROM THE EUI PROVOST FOR RESEARCH AND EXTERNAL RELATIONS

Welcome to the 18th edition of the EUI Directory of Academic Publications and Data, a snapshot of the curiosity, craft, and collective energy behind research at the European University Institute. With the world changing fast, we've been thinking hard about what good social science and humanities research looks like today and how to make it matter. At the time of writing, the EUI is at a symbolic moment: nearing our 50th anniversary, and a year into the life of the new Cadmus, our research repository. It is also a moment to pause and take stock of what we are building together, and of the responsibility that comes with it.

At the heart of the EUI is a community of scholars, early-stage researchers, postdoctoral fellows, and faculty from around the world, who ask ambitious and challenging questions and follow the evidence wherever it leads. They work on many of today's most challenging issues, often across disciplines and methods, while keeping research independent, rigorous, and open to debate. Much of this work also travels beyond the seminar room: into policy conversations, public discussion, datasets, and new research tools, often through partnerships with European and national institutions.

A major engine of this research life is our doctoral and postdoctoral programmes, including the Max Weber and Jean Monnet Programmes, which give talented researchers time, mentoring, and an intense intellectual environment to develop bold work. Supported by committed faculty and professional staff, the EUI research community is deeply connected to international scholarly networks, publishing in leading outlets and engaging in debates that shape how we understand Europe and the world.

This year's directory captures that momentum. With 1,428 publications, EUI scholars produced 77 books, 249 book chapters, 161 theses, 623 journal articles, 115 working papers, and 175 research reports, lectures, policy briefs, and papers, alongside 22 new datasets and 6 videos. These outputs reflect a research culture that values substance, originality, and reach, from foundational scholarship to work that informs real-world choices.

We are also strengthening our commitment to Open Access, so that EUI research can be read, used, and built on as widely as possible. I encourage you to explore Cadmus, the EUI Research Repository (<https://cadmus.eui.eu>), which is updated daily and increasingly features our work freely accessible in Open Access format. Broadening access helps research travel further, into classrooms, policy arenas, civil society, and new research projects.

It's a pleasure to present this 18th edition of the Directory. My deepest congratulations go to all our scholars, and my thanks to the colleagues whose work makes this directory and Cadmus possible. I hope you'll use this report as a resource and as a reminder of what this community produces when it has the space to think, test, and publish. And I hope it also conveys something less visible but equally real: the care, generosity, and quiet persistence that sustain serious research day after day.

INTRODUCTION FROM THE EUI LIBRARY DIRECTOR

I am pleased to present the 18th edition of the EUI Academic Publications and Data Directory, showcasing the research contributions of EUI members published in 2025, an edition that coincides with the 50th anniversary of the European University Institute.

The Directory is structured by publication type and includes books, theses, journal articles, book chapters, working papers, research reports, and datasets, offering a comprehensive overview of the EUI's scholarly output.

In 2025, the EUI academic community produced 1,428 research outputs, of which 1,139 are available in full text (80%), and of these 947 (83%) are already Open Access. Overall, 66% of this year's research outputs are Open Access, reinforcing the EUI's commitment to the wide dissemination of knowledge. I am particularly pleased to note that, for the fifth consecutive year, Open Access publications have outnumbered non-OA content.

The EUI Library plays a key role in this effort by assisting EUI authors in understanding which versions of their publications can be made openly available. To ensure that this support delivers the best possible results for the scholarly community, the Library relies on a dedicated Open Science support team which, although small in size, is highly specialised and provides expert guidance across publishing, data, and research visibility.

To present a complete picture of the scientific output produced at our institution, I strongly encourage all EUI members to provide the full text of their research. Doing so further increases the visibility and accessibility of our discoveries and academic advances.

At the moment of launching this publication, we celebrate the first anniversary of a crucial technological transition - new Cadmus repository - designed to meet the quality standards required by the EUI community.

EUI members are required to deposit their publications in Cadmus, ensuring their visibility and retrievability. Thanks to the Library's ORCID–Cadmus integration implemented by the Library, publications listed in Cadmus are automatically pushed to the ORCID profiles of EUI members, simplifying research dissemination and enhancing visibility.

The Library's support for Open Access is also materialised through transformative and special agreements with scholarly publishers. Since 2020, more than 300 articles have been published Open Access without authors having to pay APCs, thanks to agreements covering over 9,000 journal titles. In addition, the Fair Open Science Fund supports non-profit Open Access initiatives, reflecting the EUI's commitment to equitable and sustainable research dissemination.

Finally, I would like to express my sincere thanks to all EUI researchers who have diligently deposited their publications in Cadmus, embracing Open Access whenever possible. Your contributions help increase the global visibility of EUI research and ensure that knowledge remains open and accessible to all.

Cadmus, EUI Research Repository

Cadmus, the EUI's research repository, has been dedicated for over 20 years to collecting, preserving, and providing access to the EUI's research outputs in alignment with the EUI Open Access policy. Serving as the primary showcase for EUI's Research Output, Cadmus now hosts nearly 33,000 records. Managed as a core service of the EUI Library, Cadmus ensures global dissemination of EUI's publications, data, and videos, with 48% of its content available in open access. Its metadata is in the public domain, supporting reuse and interoperability through open international protocols.

The new Cadmus was successfully launched on 5 May 2025, migrated to DSpace 7 technology. This represented a key milestone in 2025. The upgrade improved performance, enhanced the user experience, and enabled closer integration with other Library services. It also reinforced the visibility, accessibility, and long-term preservation of EUI research outputs, ensuring wider dissemination and secure archiving.

The upgrade introduced several significant enhancements, including a fully responsive, mobile-friendly interface that improved search and browsing, customisable lists that could be created, managed, and shared, and integration with researchers' ORCID profiles. New statistics dashboards were implemented to provide deeper insight into usage data, such as most consulted publications, leading authors, and global readership patterns. In addition, entity-based navigation through authors, projects, and publications was introduced, supported by dedicated profile pages for all EUI members.

EUI Open Access

The EUI Open Access Policy encourages scholars to facilitate the widespread dissemination of their research by making their publications available in Cadmus, the EUI's Research Repository. An increasing proportion of publications in the repository are available in Open Access.

EUI Library's Open Access Publishing Agreements

The EUI publishing agreements waive the Open Access fees for EUI authors in over 9,000 journal titles published by Cambridge University Press, Elsevier, Springer and Wiley.

EUI corresponding authors can publish their journal articles in Open Access without paying any Article Processing Charge (APC). Since 2020, over 300 Open Access articles have been published by EUI members through the EUI Library publishing agreements.

El complejo jesuita de Tepotzotlán (1580–1618)

Ciudad de México : Universidad Iberoamericana, 2025, Ediciones Navarra ; 1, Published version of EUI PhD thesis, 2015;

Este libro examina el complejo proceso fundacional de la Compañía de Jesús en Tepotzotlán durante el periodo crucial de 1580 a 1618, durante el generalato de Claudio Acquaviva. A través de un análisis profundo de las tensiones internas entre las misiones para los indios y la educación para los españoles, el estudio revela cómo los jesuitas enfrentaron la disyuntiva entre dedicarse a los indios en el campo misional o adaptarse a las demandas educativas de la élite española.

Art, aesthetics and international justice

Abingdon ; New York : Routledge, 2025,

This book demonstrates that art is implicit in the process of administration of international justice. The diverse nature of recent global threats as well as an overwhelming pull towards isolationism and nationalism challenge the dominant deterrence paradigm of international governance created in the aftermath of the Second World War. An alternative model is to focus on cooperation, and not deterrence, as a guiding operational principle. This volume focuses on the theoretical component linking justice with aesthetics as well as on the practical manifestation of such connection evident, inter alia, in the rhetoric of international courts, their architectural design and their commemorative practices expressed by the practice of symbolic reparations adopted by some of the courts. The underlying premise of the book is that international justice requires new vocabulary and new approaches, which can be derived from the study of aesthetics. It is held that exploring the aesthetical dimension of international justice contributes to the discussion on the foundations of its authority and the grounds for compliance with it. The work engages deeply with the theory of aesthetics developed by Immanuel Kant and Abhinavagupta, a Kashmiri critic, philosopher and scholar writing in the early eleventh century. The book will be of interest to academics and researchers working in the areas of Legal Philosophy, International Criminal Justice and International Law and International Relations.

Wartime Europe : EU integration, reform and enlargement

Special issue of Journal of European public policy, 2025, Vol. 32, No. 12, The European Union is undergoing strategic redefinition through wartime conditions and shifting global orders, seeking to position itself as a geopolitical power. Enlargement and deeper integration are increasingly framed as instruments to achieve EU geopolitical goals. Since 2019, EU leaders have embraced the language of power and strategy, a shift accelerated by Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine in 2022. Yet it remains unclear how the EU – an actor without a unified national interest or classic statehood – can operationalise a geopolitical agenda grounded in traditionally state-centric logics. How is the EU achieving power-maximising goals beyond its borders?

From club to commons : enlargement, reform and sustainability in European integration

Cambridge : Cambridge University Press, 2025, Elements in economics of European integration,

The Element identifies the logic of how the European Union (EU) has developed both in terms of the way the organization works and the way it has expanded to include new member states. It combines insights from the economic theories related to clubs and common-pool resources. The argument is that the EU may have started as a club, where members agreed to lose arrangements to generate and govern non-rivalrous goods from which only they could benefit, but it quickly evolved into a system of common-pool resources, where members have to manage rivalrous goods, the access to which cannot easily be refused to outsiders. That evolution was necessary to avoid the depletion of the goods EU member states depend on. The argument is illustrated through the evolution of the single market, the single currency, the single financial space, and security. This title is also available as Open Access on Cambridge Core.

Disability in the Arab world : interdisciplinary perspectives

Leuven : Leuven University Press, 2025, Islam, culture and society,

Interdisciplinary insights on disability in the MENA region according to the World Health Organization, around 16% of the world's population lives with a disability, and it is estimated that approximately 80% of them reside in the Global South. Nevertheless, research on persons with disabilities is typically limited to the Global North. This interdisciplinary volume, with contributions from psychology, sociology, history, linguistics, and development studies, addresses this discrepancy by providing new insights into disability in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region. While recognizing the significance of the medical approach, the authors seek to expand existing frameworks by including social, cultural and human rights perspectives. Engaging with both historical and contemporary contexts, Disability in the Arab World addresses issues such as the transmission and circulation of information in conventional and new media, and the colonial and postcolonial legacies affecting the study of disability.

Should a citizens' assembly complement the European Parliament?

Florence : European University Institute, 2025,

EUI, RSC, Global Governance Programme, [GLOBALCIT]

In this GLOBALCIT forum debate, Kalypso Nicolaidis proposes a plan to create a European Citizens' Assembly (ECA) with some major innovative features: the assembly should be permanent with rotating membership rather than devoted to a single issue for a limited period of time; it should be itinerant rather than located in Brussels, Strasbourg or Luxembourg; and it should have agenda-setting powers for the European Parliament that go beyond the consultative role of most national-level citizens' assemblies. In her opening essay, Nicolaidis elaborates and defends these and several other construction principles for an ECA. 19 responses by 23 authors engage critically with Nicolaidis' ideas and discuss the general merits and limitations of citizens' assemblies selected by lot. The collection concludes with a rejoinder by Nicolaidis, in which she does not so much attempt to rebut objections as to further develop her proposal in the light of arguments advanced in the debate.

BAUNOV, Alexander

La fine del regime : la caduta di tre dittature europee e il destino della Russia di Putin

Milan : Silvio Berlusconi Editore, 2025,

Translated into Italian from Russian original (2023) by Riccardo Mini;

Quando, nel gennaio 2023, è stata pubblicata in Russia la prima edizione di "La fine del regime", il libro è andato esaurito in pochi giorni e il suo autore è stato presto definito un «agente straniero» dalle autorità governative. I lettori non hanno avuto problemi a cogliere tra le righe che cosa l'autore, narrando la fine degli ultimi regimi dittatoriali nell'Europa occidentale, intendesse raccontare riguardo alla Russia di Putin, già in preda a un'involuzione che sembrava indirizzarla verso un destino simile. In questa nuova edizione, aggiornata per il pubblico internazionale, Baunov abbandona il linguaggio metaforico, usato per aggirare censure e divieti, e rende espliciti «quei parallelismi, quelle analogie e quelle differenze» che il lettore russo è in grado di comprendere immediatamente. Le risonanze con l'attualità sono molteplici: nel racconto del crollo della dittatura greca dopo il tentativo di annettere Cipro, che considerava una parte integrante del paese; nel collasso del regime portoghese, segnato da una guerra coloniale e imperialista protrattasi per anni; e infine nella prospettiva di speranza data dalla transizione democratica in Spagna, dove il cambiamento prese lentamente piede ed ebbe come protagonisti gli stessi membri dell'élite al potere. Con passo narrativo e la visione dello storico, Baunov offre preziosi strumenti per leggere il presente e per immaginare la fine della dittatura russa. L'auspicio, per la Russia e il mondo, è che la presa di coscienza di un passato governato da tragiche e fallimentari illusioni eviti all'umanità repliche future ancora peggiori.

Law and film : critical reflections on a field in motion

Abingdon ; New York : Routledge, 2025, Discourses of law,

This book explores how law can be understood through film by engaging creatively with the intellectual and aesthetic dimensions of both fields. The contributors to this book consider the need to turn to film and what this means for how we come to understand law and its absences. The chapters explore a variety of narratives, aesthetics, cinematic epistemologies and legal phenomena; from assessing law in social debates to film as legal critique, from notions of justice to contemplations on evil, and from masculine vigilantism to radical feminism. Taken together, they constitute an inspiring body of work that embodies an urgency for diverse and subversive ways to challenge law's formalism and authority; and to think about and respond variously to law's impotence, its disappointment, or its boredom. This book will appeal to legal scholars and students in law and the humanities, especially those with interests in aesthetics, law and literature, law and culture, law and society, and critical legal theory.

Handbook on crisis communication for public institutions

Florence ; Luxembourg : European University Institute ; European Stability Mechanism, 2025,

All crises demand communication under high levels of pressure and uncertainty. How institutions communicate in those moments can be as consequential as the decisions or actions taken. Poorly executed crisis communication can exacerbate an ongoing crisis or trigger a new one. When done correctly, it can enhance both an organisation's reputation and the acceptance of its crisis response. This handbook on crisis communication is primarily for public institutions, such as governments or international organisations, and comes with the recognition that crisis communication is more complex for public institutions than for private companies. Public institutions must balance different and sometimes conflicting interests and ensure that their communication is both effective and legitimate.

Media pluralism in the digital era : legal, economic, social, and political lessons learnt from Europe

New York ; Abingdon : Routledge, 2025,

[Centre for Media Pluralism and Media Freedom (CMPF)]

Bringing together scholars, journalists, and researchers from 29 European countries, this book provides a comparative and longitudinal analysis of the evolution of conditions and standards relevant for sustainable, free, and plural media and journalism in Europe in the last 10 years. Approaching the challenging and ever-changing concept of media pluralism from various complementary and sometimes conflicting angles, combining legal, economic, social, and political perspectives, chapters provide a holistic account of the concept of media pluralism, a key condition for a well-functioning democracy. This book draws on data from the Media Pluralism Monitor project, a scientific tool designed and implemented on a regular basis to document the health of media ecosystems, to provide insights into central dimensions of media systems across the EU and candidate countries. These include: the fundamental protection of freedom of expression, access to information, and safety of journalists; market plurality, transparency of ownership, media concentration, media viability, competition enforcement, and digital platforms' dominance; political independence, conflicts of interest, editorial autonomy, the role of media and digital platforms in elections, and independence of public service media; social inclusiveness, including access to media and representation of women, minorities, and people with disabilities; hate speech, disinformation, and media literacy. Offering a comprehensive overview of key areas of EU media policy, causes and solutions for the media economic struggle, and innovative examples of business models for journalism in the digital age, this book is recommended reading for advanced students and researchers of media policy and regulation, as well as policymakers.

La sfida della reindustrializzazione : dalla Toscana all'Italia e all'Europa

Florence : European University Institute, 2025,

Il nuovo contesto internazionale e l'insostenibilità del business model europeo richiedono di rilanciare la politica industriale, in coordinamento fra livello regionale, nazionale ed europeo. Il tentativo del Manifesto sulla reindustrializzazione della Toscana e quello di sollecitare una discussione su questi temi partendo dal basso e allargandosi ad altre realtà regionali. Il seminario ha l'obiettivo di iniziare a riempire di contenuti quello che abbiamo definito un modello ad ESSE, ovvero di uno sviluppo che deve simultaneamente tenere conto di Efficienza, Sostenibilità, Sicurezza ed Equità: quattro dimensioni oggi ineludibili.

Freedom of expression of judges : European and national perspectives

Abingdon ; New York : Routledge, 2025,

This book addresses the impact of developments surrounding the freedom of expression of judges by building on the experience of judges themselves, legal practitioners and academics across Europe. Like everybody, judges enjoy freedom of expression. However, historically, there have been starker limitations to the free speech of judges compared to ordinary citizens, the rationale being to safeguard judicial independence, impartiality and public trust in the judiciary. Where exactly the boundary lies is a highly complex question. The recent developments in Europe have rekindled the dilemma of guaranteeing freedom of expression to judges. The rule of law crisis has led many judges to speak out against the attacks of autocratic governments targeting judges and courts. The rapid expansion of the digital world has opened up new channels of communication, and the growing role of courts in society has expanded the reach of courts to practically any social issue, even the most polarised. This work critically analyses the recent jurisprudence of the Court of Justice of the EU and the European Court of Human Rights, its reception at the national level and the contribution of national judiciaries to the discussion pervading the European judicial space. It seeks to raise awareness that judicial speech is a multifaceted phenomenon shaped by complex legal and social considerations worth further exploration. The book will be of interest to academics, researchers, and policy-makers working in the areas of Human Rights Law, Constitutional Law and Politics, and Comparative Law.

Alcide De Gasperi : la cultura di un politico cattolico

Roma : Carocci editore, 2025, Frecce ; 425,

“Attivista cattolico nell’Impero asburgico, ultimo segretario del Partito popolare italiano, vittima della repressione fascista, leader della ricostruzione italiana ed europea. Alcide De Gasperi attraversò stagioni molto diverse, entusiasmanti e tragiche, seguendo il tempo accelerato del Novecento. Il libro ricostruisce per la prima volta i contorni della sua cultura, mettendo in relazione l’attività politica che lo ha reso celebre con le idee che ne orientarono l’impegno. Ripercorrendo le tracce pubbliche e private della sua riflessione, individua e analizza i grandi temi con cui si confrontò dagli anni della formazione fino all’apice della sua carriera, come la libertà e la democrazia, la nazione e la comunità internazionale, la giustizia sociale. Soprattutto, questa biografia intellettuale mostra in che modo un politico cattolico cercò di tradurre la propria fede religiosa nell’attività politica e sociale, conciliando l’autonomia decisionale con la fedeltà agli insegnamenti della Chiesa. In tale percorso, non di rado travagliato, si definì il profilo politico e intellettuale di uno dei protagonisti del Novecento italiano ed europeo.”

Latin American international law in the twenty-first century

New York : Oxford University Press, 2025,
[Global Governance Programme]

Latin America has been a pivotal site for influential and innovative developments in international law since the colonial era. Throughout much of the twentieth century, Latin American politics were entangled with the political and economic interests of the United States. Today, as the global order shifts, scholars and legal practitioners are grappling with the current restructuring and potential transformation of international relations—and what this means for international law in the region. This collection of essays brings together a group of highly regarded scholars to present a broad survey of Latin America’s approaches and contributions, historically and presently, to the field of international law. Comprehensive, diverse, and multidisciplinary, the book covers recent developments in environmental regulation, internet regulation, Indigenous rights, LGBTIQ rights, and public health, among others. It also considers more traditional themes, such as law and development, the doctrine of non-intervention, human rights, and jurisdictional disputes in the Spanish colonies. A timely publication covering an ever-evolving region, Latin American International Law in the Twenty-First Century explores the role of Latin American politics on the world stage. Theories, perspectives, and methods of international law are expertly interwoven with those of sociology, political science, anthropology, philosophy, history, and economics to present a dynamic and multifaceted work of scholarship.

The European Ombudsman investigated : from old battles to new challenges

Oxford : Bloomsbury Academic, 2025,

This book is a seminal study of the European Ombudsman, focusing on current challenges and future developments by its leading expert commentators. This open access volume traces the evolution of the European Ombudsman over its first almost three decades. Its focus however lies on the current challenges and future perspectives of this ever-innovative EU institution. It brings together leading voices from academia, EU institutions, civil society, and the European Ombudsman's office. It highlights developments and future potential in several salient fields, from data infrastructure and digital platforms over environmental protection and border protection agencies to revolving doors and industry lobbying. The collection's breadth of study and depth of expertise will mean this is required reading for scholars of EU law, from both a constitutional and consumer law perspective.

The European Union as a global cultural power

Berlin ; Boston : De Gruyter, 2025, Transnational approaches to culture, Although culture is increasingly recognised as a relevant focus of scholarly analysis, the European Union (EU) has not yet been examined as a global cultural power. Addressing this gap, this book offers a comprehensive overview of the multiple arenas through which the EU has emerged as a major cultural actor beyond its borders. Focusing on Culture in Foreign Policy and Development, as well as Media and Trade, the book gathers an international team of experts to provide a comprehensive analysis of the EU's multifaceted cultural action across various policy fields and regions. The book draws together discussions in cultural studies, cultural policy, international relations, media studies, and law to ask the following questions: What characterises EU cultural and media policies and programmes beyond its borders? What are the assumptions and the goals that underlie such policies and programmes? Suggesting that the EU is beginning to emerge as an enabling power that supports cultural diversity around the world, the volume also reflects on the global role of the EU and contribute to debates regarding the liberal international order by taking a new angle.

Regional order making after October 7

Washington : Project on Middle East Political Science, 2025, POMEPS studies ; 56,

In December 2024, we convened a workshop at the Robert Schuman Center of the European University Institute in partnership with POMEPS and SEPAD to discuss regional changes and their meaning for our book. How did the October 7 attacks, the Gaza war, and Israel's rapidly expanding military actions from Lebanon to Iran change the region? Were those changes in line with the book's theoretical predictions? And what would our book have to say to the new aspirants hoping to remake regional order?

The New Haven School : American international law

Oxford ; New York : Oxford University Press, 2025, The history and theory of international law,

Published version of EUI PhD thesis, 2019;

This book is an intellectual history of the 'New Haven School', a school of legal theory and practice associated with Yale Law School in the city of New Haven. New Haven School 'policy-oriented jurisprudence'—so-called for its emphasis on using law to pursue acknowledged policy aims—was developed from the 1940s by Harold Lasswell, a central figure of twentieth-century American political science, and Myres McDougal, a prominent international lawyer. The book argues that the New Haven School style of argument was representative of mid-century American international law. Through the biographies and scholarship of Lasswell, McDougal, and New Haven School members, and using previously unexploited archival materials, the book explores how this body of legal theory was shaped and how it influenced the legal arguments made by McDougal and other members of the school in support of Cold War anti-communist policy positions and legal practice of the United States. The book shows that the New Haven School represented a specific anti-formalism and a collection of methods that characterized how American scholars and lawyers practised international law in the middle of the twentieth century, and still do today.

Computational research in ethnic and migration studies

London : Routledge, 2025, Research in ethnic and migration studies,

This book showcases the potential of computational approaches for research questions at the heart of migration and integration research via a set of original, cutting-edge empirical studies by a diverse, international team of authors. Why do people emigrate? Do weather conditions and climate change affect decisions to migrate? How do migration networks evolve on a global scale? Can we predict refugee movements? How do host communities respond to the influx of refugees? Do right-wing populist parties get stronger where lots of refugees are located? Do terror attacks lead to more hostility towards immigrants? What mechanisms explain neighborhood ethnic segregation? The collection of studies in this book harnesses the power of an emerging interdisciplinary research field known as computational social science to shed new light on such classic questions of migration and integration research. The cutting-edge empirical studies use a wide range of computational approaches, from agent-based modeling and network analysis to machine learning, natural language processing, and advanced spatial methods and cover detailed spatial, textual, and network data from both online and offline sources. The book thus demonstrates the potential of computational approaches for migration and integration research, while also discussing the challenges that arise in this emerging field.

Regulating innovation in the digital age : a demand-centred toolbox for the data-driven economy

Oxford : Bloomsbury Academic, 2025, Hart studies in commercial and financial law,

Published version of EUI PhD thesis, 2022;

This book examines the role, impact, and limitations of regulation as a tool for shaping innovative markets. It contends that the current supply-centred approach is suboptimal in the context of digital innovation and proposes a blueprint for a more demand-conscious approach to regulation. The focus on the demand-side is prompted by the evolving role of consumers within the innovation process in the digital and data-driven economy, the regulatory implications of which are underexplored in legal scholarship. The book features in-depth case studies of the most recent regulatory initiatives in the EU, including Open Banking, the Digital Markets Act (DMA), and the AI Act. It dismantles innovative regulatory instruments, and critically examines their underlying assumptions from an innovation perspective. The new demand-based approach informs the design and use of supply-side market-centred tools, behaviourally-informed demand-side instruments, and technological regulation, by introducing a coherent set of demand-centred considerations. The book offers a regulatory toolbox recalibrated for the digital age and serves as a practical guide for academics, policymakers, regulators, and legal practitioners seeking to understand and engage with the regulation of innovative markets.

Promoting the 'human' in law, policy, and medicine : essays in honour of Bartha Maria Knoppers

Leiden ; Boston : Brill Nijhoff, 2025, Global health, human rights and social justice ; 1,

Professor Bartha Maria Knoppers stepped down from the Canada Research Chair in Law and Medicine at McGill University in April 2024, a post she held for more than 20 years. Professor Knoppers consistently prioritized "humanity" in her academic work and in policymaking. As such, she forged a strong intellectual legacy, notably through her work on the human right to science, genomic and health-related data sharing, genome editing, human reproductive technologies, stem cell research, the rights of children, and population health. This collection of essays honours her extraordinary academic contributions to law, policy, and medicine.

Mobilizing for welfare in Europe : the unpolitical politics of social action, 1870s-1990s. A document reader

London : Bloomsbury Academic, 2025,
[SOCIOBORD]

This is an engaging collection of 20 primary sources that provide insights into different approaches to social welfare from around Europe in the long 20th century, focusing particularly on marginalized groups. Each chapter sheds light on a case of collective welfare action, and includes translated archival documents, alongside commentary that contextualises each case, and examines its socio-political underpinnings. This volume explores sources from 12 European countries, capturing historical approaches to collective action, and encompassing a plethora of welfare issues – such as religious and secular philanthropy, youth protection, gender history, and campaigns for prison reform. The result is a detailed study of the social welfare state in Europe. With every source accompanied by an analysis of the ideas, ambitions, and practices of the actors themselves, in addition to an exploration of the larger regional context that influenced each pattern of collective mobilization, the editors highlight the distinction between the social and the political that underlies many forms of action undertaken in the field. Using the idea of ‘unpolitical politics’ as a new lens through which to explore the development of social welfare in a number of European contexts, this volume analyses who and what purports to be ‘neutral’, and why.

The (geo)politics of democracy in wider Europe

Florence : European University Institute, 2025,
EUI, RSC, Global Governance Programme, [Southeastern Europe]

The global geopolitical planes have shifted with the full-scale Russian invasion of Ukraine and the war in Gaza. These geopolitical shifts have revealed how intimately connected democracy is to geopolitics, and how vulnerable are nascent and transitional democratic societies to external influence. This book looks at the interplay between the European Union (EU) enlargement and democratic development, and how it has been affected by the political, economic and cultural influences of undemocratic third actors. The first part of the book zooms in on these actors in the six Western Balkan states (Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia, and Serbia). The second part of the book complements the country studies with thematic insights from specific areas on entanglement between democracy and geopolitical interests and influences. The third, final, part of the book reflects on previous enlargements, highlighting how important it is to prevent transitional experiences that enable the rise of illiberal forces.

The legitimacy of EU environmental governance and the role of the European Courts

Oxford : Oxford University Press, 2025, Collected Courses of the Academy of European Law ; XXXIII/1, Collected courses of the Academy of European Law, [AEL] European courts have an important role to play in contributing to the legitimacy of EU environmental governance. Their role in holding to account and scrutinizing administrative and legislative acts is critical to the overall legitimacy of the political system. However, the boundaries of legitimacy in governance are themselves being shaped by the environmental context. This volume explores how the environment affects the ways in which the courts can support the legitimacy of EU governance, and, in turn, what the courts themselves bring to the table in enhancing that legitimacy. The Legitimacy of EU Environmental Governance and the Role of the European Courts considers soft law, human rights, the environmental principles, judicial procedures and remedies, and the wider European law context, to examine the dynamics which shape the courts' contributions to legitimacy. Bringing together leading authors in EU constitutional and administrative law and EU environmental law, this book explores the ways in which environmental degradation is shifting how the courts, and we, assess what legitimate governance actually consists of.

The drones race and international security

Cham : Springer, 2025, Contributions to security and defence studies, This volume discusses the rise of drone technology in modern warfare, focusing on its profound implications for global military competition, arms control, and international security. Situated within the broader context of contemporary international relations, where emerging military technologies are increasingly central to the formulation of national security strategies, this book explores not only the technological advancements that enable drone warfare, but also the strategic, political, and ethical dilemmas that arise from their widespread use. The scope of the book spans several key areas: the rapid development of drones as tools of military power, the implications for global arms races, the challenges they present to arms control frameworks, and the evolving nature of international security in an age of autonomous and semi-autonomous weapons systems. Through an interdisciplinary lens, this book draws on international relations theory, security studies, and military strategy, seeking to provide a nuanced understanding of the issues at play. Filling a critical gap by providing a detailed, interdisciplinary examination of the global "drones race" and its consequences for security, governance, and international norms, this volume will be of interest to scholars and students working in fields such as security studies, arms control, the proliferation of conventional weapons, and international security.

Pesticide regulation past and present : scales, actors, and agendas

Special issue of Comparativ, 2025, Vol. 35, No.3,

This theme issue examines the slow evolution of regulatory frameworks on the use of pesticides at both national and international levels by looking at the political and societal dynamics that drove regulation attempts or opposition to regulation. Bringing together scholars from history and the social sciences, the issue compares case studies from different countries and regions and across different time periods, from Francoist Spain in the mid-twentieth century to democratic Norway in the late twentieth century, and from an international organization based in France in the 1970s and 1980s to a contemporary cardamom plantation in southern India. The theme issue shows that paths towards regulation of pesticides over the course of the twentieth century differed wildly across national contexts, and were strongly dependent on political, economic, technological, but also ideological factors. Engaging with different perspectives, scales, and actors helps us understand that the slow regulation of pesticide use was not the result of a lack of knowledge or lack of coordination, but the result of conflicting interests across different political systems, actors, and regions.

EU regulatory responses to crises : adaptation or transformation?

New York : Oxford University Press, 2025,

The past years have seen a number of crises, for example the Great Financial Crisis, the migration crisis, and the COVID-19 pandemic. At the EU level, these crises have strongly affected the following fields: Economic and Monetary Union, financial regulation and supervision, health policy, state aid, energy policy, migration policy, and foreign and defence policy. As a reaction to these crises, EU rule-making in these fields has developed in various ways. These changes—essentially brought about only on the basis of secondary law—have had an institutional dimension; that is, they have concerned the actors involved in rule-making. Beyond that, the changes have also affected the shape or nature of the rules—such as the increasing use of non-binding rules ('soft law')—and the process of rule-making as such. Further dimensions of this change concern the cooperation with national bodies. Additionally, the substance of existing rules (including primary law) has been reconsidered, as a result of unprecedented challenges. In this vein, there has been a deviation in practice from the Dublin system as regards the distribution of refugees, and the EU has indebted itself on a considerable scale in the wake of the pandemic. This book provides an account of these developments with regard to each of the above policy fields, as well as in a horizontal perspective. Thereby, in a perspective combining legal and political science expertise, a comprehensive picture is drawn of the EU's regulatory crisis toolkit and its enrichment and refinement in reaction to new challenges.

Constitutional disintegration and disruption : withdrawal and opt-outs from the European Union

Oxford ; New York : Oxford University Press, 2025, Oxford studies in European law,

Published version of EUI PhD thesis, 2020;

The United Kingdom's unprecedented withdrawal from the European Union in 2020 may be regarded as the first example of European 'disintegration'. This moment, however, was preceded by decades of 'disruption' as the United Kingdom, Ireland, and Denmark pursued opt-outs from the supranational constitutional order. This book presents the European Union as an order that is legitimated by individuals playing a dual role as both nationals of Member States and citizens of the Union; in turn, individuals are both democratic subjects and juridical objects. The EU Treaties have instituted a 'trptych' for the exercise of 'constituted constituent power': Article 49 TEU allowing accession, Article 48 TEU enabling amendment, and Article 50 TEU as a mechanism for the repatriation of power through withdrawal. Opt-outs are an iterative anomaly that have arisen through the retention of amendment power by representatives of Member State nationals. Reservations of constituent power have been operationalized in Protocols to the Treaties. By contrast, the withdrawal clause was proactively inserted into the Treaties as a sovereign right for Member State nationals subject to an orderly supranational procedure for the benefit of all EU citizens. The book presents narratives of disruption and disintegration that provide comprehensive historical overviews of how opt-outs and withdrawal arose and developed. It concludes with criticism of the consequences of these phenomena for individuals, and proposes reforms to the EU Treaties that would enable citizens to more fully realize their dual role in the European constitutional space.

Climate change and economic growth : lessons from Argentina

Cham : Springer, 2025, SpringerBriefs in Latin American studies,

This book examines the complex relationship between energy use, economic growth, and the environment, focusing on Argentina and its relevance to other Latin American countries and developing economies. It offers an interdisciplinary approach and policy recommendations to reconcile efforts to reduce, adapt, and mitigate climate change with sustainable development goals. Its interdisciplinary effort includes two chapters that lay on the intersection between Behavioral Science and climate change, highlighting the use of behavioral science to understand society's actions concerning climate change and how to reverse biases and promote more sustainable behaviors. The book also includes a unique contribution from undergraduate students, reflecting the growing demand of younger generations for intergenerational justice and concrete actions to protect the environment. With a broad audience in mind, including academics, researchers, policymakers, and the general public interested in climate change, energy, and sustainable development, this volume offers a distinctive perspective not found in other publications.

When deportation fails : non-removable migrants in the European Union

Oxford : Oxford University Press, 2025, Oxford Studies in European Law,

Published version of EUI PhD thesis, 2022;

Statistics show that deportation rates in the European Union remain strikingly low and are decreasing. However, successfully resisting deportation does not guarantee a residence permit, often leaving migrants in legal limbo—unable to return home, yet unable to gain legal residence. The existence of non-removable migrants challenges long-established migration categories and highlights the ambiguities of a framework that fails to meet its deportation aims while clinging to migration control impulses. When Deportation Fails examines this legal category on the margins of the law, exploring its normative and empirical foundations. It analyses the processes and legal frameworks that create non-removability in the EU, explaining why, despite the normalization, legalization, and legitimization of deportation, EU Member States struggle to deport as much as they publicly aim to. Furthermore, the book reveals the legal implications of non-removability and proposes solutions. It argues that EU law stratifies the rights of non-removable migrants into distinct sub-categories and explores regularization as a desirable policy to end protracted irregularity and non-removability. Covering diverse issues in migration studies, asylum and citizenship law, and migration policy theory, this comprehensive study will appeal to academic scholars and those working on migration issues in EU organizations and the non-governmental sector.

Fragile aid : development cooperation in weak states and conflict contexts

New York : Oxford University Press, 2025, Wider studies in development economics,

An important question for the future of aid concerns its role in weak states and conflict contexts areas. While considerable research points to a mixed record of effectiveness in these contexts, the imperative of external support for development and humanitarian needs persists. Bringing together findings from a diverse set of expert analyses, this volume sheds new light on the record of aid under fragility, spotlighting two key implications for research and practice going forward. First, more systematic unpacking of the considerable diversity that exists across fragile contexts is needed to better understand past experience and its lessons for future practice. Second, the aid effectiveness principles provide important insight into how aid can be improved, but there are fundamental challenges to their application in weak states and conflict contexts. In sum, the world urgently needs better aid, not less aid.

How states respond to crisis : pandemic governance across the Global South

New York : Oxford University Press, 2025, Wider studies in development economics,

We expect the state to matter in times of crisis, and for more 'capable' or 'stronger' states to better provide for and protect their populations. But how is it, precisely, that the quality of the state matters? This volume speaks to this question through comparative study of how diverse states in the Global South responded to the COVID-19 pandemic, the largest global crisis in recent memory. Bringing together insights from quantitative cross-country analysis and detailed country case studies, this volume analyses the ways in which the quality of the state—in terms of its capacity, authority, and legitimacy—affected pandemic governance and health outcomes. Overall, while the significance of state capacity to deliver public services in effective pandemic response is clear, so too is striking variation among states lacking 'strong' capacity. State legitimacy and authority shed light on this variation, linked in particular to the degree to which governments' responses were evidence-based versus politically driven, and the tenor of citizen compliance with and government enforcement of public health regulations. Seven case study chapters authored by leading scholars of each country provide deep and specific insight into these relationships in Bolivia, Ghana, Nicaragua, Peru, the Philippines, Tanzania, and Vietnam. Extending beyond a literature on the state based heavily on the study of Global North contexts, this volume sheds new light on the nature of the state and its role in crisis response and development.

Handbook on electricity regulation

Cheltenham ; Northampton : Edward Elgar Publishing, 2025,
[Florence School of Regulation], [Electricity]

With twenty-two chapters written by leading international experts, this volume represents the most detailed and comprehensive Handbook on electricity regulation ever published. The volume covers the existing state of best-practice regulation in the US, UK, the European Union and Australia, for both electricity transmission, electricity distribution and retail electricity. The regulatory challenges of the energy transition are discussed. These include the need for regulators to incentivise large amounts of investment in conditions of uncertainty and to promote innovation. Deep decarbonisation, via electrification, raises regulatory issues for electric vehicle charging infrastructure and hydrogen networks. The book also considers the state of electricity regulation in China, India and smaller lower and middle income countries. These jurisdictions have underdeveloped regulatory systems which can benefit from learning from more advanced regulatory systems as long as there is sufficient adaptation to local contexts. The Handbook is intended to be used by those with direct interests in electricity regulation. Students and young professionals will find the information they need to enter the field in a single source. Researchers, experienced professionals and public decision-makers will get a comprehensive update on topical issues in electricity regulation. This will help them make sense of a sector that is undergoing profound change at the same time as the public policy motivations for regulation are not diminishing.

Digest of the handbook on electricity regulation

Florence : [European University Institute, Florence School of Regulation] ;
[JMG Press], 2025,

[Florence School of Regulation], [Energy]

This Digest is a summarised version of GLACHANT, Jean-Michel, JOSKOW, Paul L., POLLITT, Michael G. (eds), Handbook on electricity regulation, Cheltenham ; Northampton : Edward Elgar Publishing, 2025;

This book is a companion volume to the Handbook on Electricity Markets, which focused on the evolution and challenges of wholesale electricity markets, particularly with the integration of intermittent renewable energy. This volume shifts the focus to the formally regulated segments of the electricity sector: network regulation, the functions of economic regulators, and the regulation of retail electricity. The content is structured into three distinct parts. The first part establishes the current state of electricity regulation, examining its foundations and recent reforms. The second part looks towards the future, exploring the regulatory implications of the path to net zero carbon emissions. The third part broadens the geographical scope to consider the unique regulatory landscapes of non-OECD countries. This digest aims to provide decision-makers with a comprehensive overview of the key principles, challenges, and future directions in electricity regulation, drawing from the rich insights and detailed analysis contained within the full Handbook.

Contested states in war and law

Bristol : Bristol University Press, 2025,

The precarious status of contested states both reflects and begets conflict. From Taiwan to Western Sahara and from Nagorno-Karabakh to the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, contested states call into question the standard categories of international law that divide inside and outside, state and non-state, war and rebellion. They inevitably fall in-between them, while alternatively disputing and negotiating their applicability. Bringing together perspectives from a range of disciplines, the book focuses on some of the most entrenched conflicts around the world. It reveals how different actors, including de facto governments, parent and patron states, local populations, and international courts, navigate the grey zone as they redraw, or work around, the fault lines of war and law.

Former des démocrates transnationaux? : l'UE et l'éducation à la citoyenneté européenne

Brussels : Éditions de l'Université de Bruxelles, 2025, Études européennes ; 68,

L'UE tente régulièrement de promouvoir l'éducation à la citoyenneté européenne. Mobilisés à cette fin depuis les années 1980, ces discours et politiques traduisent l'absence d'une idée globale et cohérente à l'égard de ce projet, ce qui engendre également des tensions et des contradictions au sein même de ces initiatives. Dans quelle mesure et sous quelle forme serait-il justifié que l'UE soutienne, voire encourage l'éducation à la citoyenneté européenne ? Une telle formation devrait être conçue de manière à coconstruire les citoyennetés nationales et européenne. Pour la favoriser, les institutions européennes devraient orienter plus résolument leurs politiques et leurs initiatives vers la formation de démocrates transnationaux ou de « demoï-crates ». De cette manière, elles pourraient également contribuer, aux côtés de leurs États membres, à développer l'éducation à la citoyenneté en tant que telle en Europe. Au-delà du contexte de l'intégration européenne, celle-ci devrait être repensée face aux défis de la mondialisation et du pluralisme dans les démocraties libérales ainsi que dans la perspective de la nécessaire transformation vers des sociétés durables. Fournissant une analyse critique de l'idée de l'éducation à la citoyenneté européenne et de la façon dont l'UE a favorisé ce projet jusqu'à présent, cet ouvrage de théorie politique appliquée conclut sur une série de propositions visant à mieux exploiter le potentiel existant.

How economic ideas evolve : the impact of religion on the German and Italian welfare state

Cambridge ; New York : Cambridge University Press, 2025, Cambridge Studies in Historical Sociology,

Published version of EUI PhD thesis, 2012;

How Economic Ideas Evolve offers a unique perspective on the development of political economies in Europe. With three major contributions, the book first establishes a link between religious, social, and economic ideas and the diverging development of political economies in Europe. Secondly, the work provides a historical sociological analysis of the contextual factors that influenced the development of religiously inspired socio-economic ideas. Chapters examine the impact of these ideas on economic and welfare institutions in Germany and Italy over three centuries. Lastly, the book goes beyond classic historical sociology to focus on the long-term developmental trajectories and impact of ideas on politics and policy. Thorough and expansive, How Economic Ideas Evolve contributes to the emerging scholarship of ideational historical sociology, broadening the toolkit of historical sociology to research the development and impact of socio-economic ideas and ideologies over long periods of time.

Rethinking European security

Special issue of International politics, 2025, Vol. 62, No. 5, [Global Governance Programme], [Europe in the World]

Questions about whether, where, how, and with whom to organize European security and defense policy have been on the agendas of national governments many times. Over the last seven decades or so, manifold ideas have been proposed, demonstrating that European security and defense policy can be organized in different ways. Actors have debated and (dis)agreed over who is considered a beneficiary of European security and defense initiatives, how to assure security/defense and against what/whom, and in what way to relate the many organizations that address European security and defense policy to one another. While some of their proposals remained only that, others were formally ratified and implemented. This myriad of proposals and organizational innovations encapsulate different security visions and approaches. In this forum, we take stock of recent security and defense developments that have occurred in the name of and in Europe. We address the questions of how European security and defense is organized in and across individual states, as well as in multilateral security and defense organizations since Russia's invasion of Ukraine and the US's decreasing commitment to invest in European security. We furthermore inquire what is at stake for actors in the European security and defense realm, e.g., how do they position themselves vis-à-vis other powerful actors such as the US, China, or Russia? To answer these questions, this collection distinguishes between four types of actors: architects, bricoleurs, agnostics, and spoilers. What distinguishes these actors are their different degrees of engagement and investment with European security and defense issues; alongside substantive preferences, they differ in how they define political stakes, what compromises they are willing to make, and what capacities are available to them.

INNERARITY, Daniel

A theory of complex democracy : governing in the twenty-first century

London : Bloomsbury Academic, 2025, Political theory and contemporary philosophy,

Translated into English from Spanish original (2020);

Do our political systems and democracies really reflect the complex reality of the 21st century? Or does politics seem to be legislating about yesterday's world? In his latest book, Daniel Innerarity warns of the gap between the political concepts that serve as our guide and our overly complex reality that has long ceased to respond to them. Arguing that this theoretical deficit leads to a political practice that simplifies and impoverishes our democracies, nourishing the demagogues and sustaining reassuring old narratives, Innerarity proposes a modern update of key political concepts, from power and sovereignty to territory and representation. The theory of democracy originates from a time of relative social and political simplicity. There was less pluralism, less interdependence, political entities were autarkic, and the technological tools they had to handle had nothing to do with the sophistication of our artificial intelligence, our financial system, or the technological advances in medicine. And yet, Innerarity argues, there is no need to despair. If democracy has made the transition from the polis to the nation-state, from direct democracy to representative democracy, there is no reason to suppose that it cannot face new challenges, as long as it is provided with an adequate political architecture. Drawing on a broad range of sources, including classical and contemporary theorists, A Theory of Complex Democracy presents a new theory of democracy and government for the 21st century, a theory that starts from the premise that the most promising rejuvenation of our democracies is to make them more complex.

The Great War and the transformation of Habsburg central Europe

Oxford : Oxford University Press, 2025,

The Great War and the Transformation of Habsburg Central Europe examines how the First World War transformed the multinational Austro-Hungarian Monarchy into a fractured landscape of mistrust, scarcity, and dissolution and laid the foundation for the new postwar world. The outcome of the war is not, it argues, evidence of the inherent fragility of multinational polities, and Austria-Hungary was not inevitably doomed to collapse on the eve of the war. Instead, it contends that the Habsburg state laid the groundwork for its own dissolution by turning on its citizens. By imposing military rule, suspending civil rights, fostering suspicions among its citizens based on the languages they spoke, and failing to secure enough food to feed the population, the Habsburg state both created new and exacerbated existing regional, local, religious, and national antagonisms. Over time, severe hardships on the home front, in occupied territories, and in refugee and prisoner-of-war camps spurred widespread resentment and eroded loyalty to the monarchy. But even as the Empire frayed, the war inspired innovative institutions, social welfare measures, and new understandings of citizenship that continued to influence postwar Europe. The book analyzes these experiences at multiple scales—local, imperial, and international—to demonstrate the shared transregional experiences of women, workers, and children and to emphasize the close interconnections between the social and cultural history of the Empire to its political, economic, and military history.

Utopias of sustainability. The sustainability of utopias : a multimodal intervention

Perugia : Morlacchi Editore, 2025,

As utopias of a better world appear increasingly as ephemeral, precarious and fragile, concepts related to sustainability, the environment and rurality seem at the forefront of contemporary impulses for social change. This volume collects both paper and ethnographic film contributions of the fourth Political Imagination Laboratory. The core theme is 'Utopias of Sustainability–The Sustainability of Utopias.' Examples include experiments with self-production, new forms of horizontal cooperation, new understandings of rural-urban and nature-culture relations, and reflections on the longevity of social movements. We ask: Which more or less visible utopian impulses haunt contemporary forms of activism? How are, for example, concepts like sustainability, rurality and nature employed by different actors? To which ideologies and/or utopias are these connected? In which context is and is not sustainability, rurality or ecology invoked? How can discourses and practices of sustainability, rurality, ecology and similar concepts be made visible by ethnographers?

EU competitiveness and the innovation-finance nexus

Florence : European University Institute, 2025,

[Florence School of Banking and Finance], EU Supervisory Digital Finance Academy (EU-SDFA)

This third EU Supervisory Digital Finance Academy (EU-SDFA) e-book offers an overview of the main trends and topics relevant to the Academy. The EU-SDFA is a technical support project launched by the European Commission in October 2022, in cooperation with the European Supervisory Authorities (ESAs) and the Florence School of Banking and Finance (Robert Schuman Centre, EUI). The e-book consists of ten contributions from different authors grouped in two broad areas: Digital finance macro trends in 2025, and Innovation in finance for the EU's technology ambitions, with focus on digital finance market developments and investment dynamics; regulatory and policy frameworks shaping capital markets, innovation and BigTech activity; financial literacy, consumer protection and retail participation; the integration and scaling of European capital markets for consumers and investors; and institutional, legal and governance tools (such as hubs, sandboxes, public venture capital, EuVECA and corporate law reforms) supporting innovation across the EU. The e-book is intended to enable past and future EU-SDFA participants to complement their learning experiences, while also providing valuable documents to readers interested to get an understanding of the interplay between digital finance and supervision.

The nature of the Risorgimento : science, environment and nation-building in nineteenth-century Italy

Sesto San Giovanni : Mimesis International, 2025, Cultural History of Science / Storia culturale della scienza ; 1, Published version of EUI PhD thesis, 2024;

Following Italy's unification in 1861, the new state faced the complex task of achieving political, administrative and cultural cohesion, which also required a unified body of knowledge about the national territory and its natural environment. This book explores how knowledge of Italian nature was produced, circulated, and institutionalised in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries as part of the broader nationbuilding project, and how it contributed to the symbolic and material construction of the nation. Scientists played a crucial role in articulating a naturalistic unity of the peninsula, mapping its resources, and defining the idea of a distinct 'Italian' landscape. Through a critical analysis of scientific practices, actors, and institutions, the study reveals how Italian nature served as a symbol of national identity, an instrument of political legitimacy, and a means of shaping and consolidating a shared vision of Italy as Il Bel Paese – an image that remains deeply embedded in the country's cultural imagination today.

Méthodes de médiation : au cœur de la facilitation (2e édition)

Malakoff : Dunod, 2025,

Face au conflit, la médiation entend renouer le dialogue grâce à un tiers bienveillant et compétent. Mais on ne naît pas médiateur, on le devient. Cette seconde édition actualisée explore une multiplicité d'approches disponibles en médiation. Ce livre s'adresse à tous, parce que la médiation concerne chacun: parties prenantes, médiateurs ponctuels ou professionnels, avocats ou autres conseils. Comment faciliter la recherche de solutions équitables? Vous trouverez dans ce livre des principes éprouvés, des techniques concrètes et des pratiques nuancées – illustrés par de nombreux nouveaux exemples. Nourries des réflexions et des expériences accumulées par trois auteurs aux profils complémentaires, ces méthodes de médiation aideront à renouer des relations apaisées, à se sentir reconnu et à trouver des chemins inattendus qui (ra)mènent vers l'autre.

Extraterritoriality around the globe : multiform approaches in a multipolar world

Abingdon ; New York : Routledge, 2025, OnlineFirst,
Analysing different political and policy drivers of extraterritoriality in various social, cultural, and economic settings, this book assesses the value of politics within the context of the law and practice of extraterritoriality. Extraterritoriality is one of the most complex and multifaceted concepts in international law, shaped by a dynamic interplay of legal, political, and practical factors. This book discusses the challenges of understanding extraterritoriality in the context of evolving international relations, the political forces behind state practices, and why international law matters in a field that, at first glance, may seem primarily national in scope. To address these issues, this book includes 12 case studies that explore extraterritoriality from a national perspective, offering both thematic and geographic breadth. It analyses the political drivers of extraterritoriality among similar countries to assess and prove their value. By examining states' extraterritorial behaviour, the book provides a more nuanced, empirical perspective on extraterritoriality, highlighting emerging trends and offering insights into its role in shaping global, legal, and political landscapes in the 21st century. This book will be of interest to researchers and practitioners in the field of extraterritoriality, law, and politics.

Handbuch Queere Zeitgeschichten III : Bewegungen

Bielefeld : Transcript, 2025, Historische Geschlechterforschung ; 22,
Dieses Handbuch macht queere Zeitgeschichte im deutschsprachigen Raum zum ersten Mal einem breiten Publikum zugänglich. Die Beiträge und Quellen erschließen Dynamiken, die das Leben von Lesben, Schwulen, Bisexuellen, trans* und nicht-binären sowie intergeschlechtlichen Personen (LSBTI) in Deutschland, Österreich und der Schweiz prägen. Im dritten Band beleuchten die Beiträger*innen Bewegungsgeschichten und Politiken ab 1945, wie beispielsweise die AIDS-Bewegung, queere Bewegungen in Österreich und der Schweiz oder das westdeutsche Ehe- und Familienrecht als antilesbisches Zwangsinstrument. Außerdem reflektieren sie Perspektiven von Queers of Color und Diskussionen um Pädosexualität in der Schwulenbewegung.

Next democratic frontiers for Facial Recognition Technology (FRT) : the legal, ethical and democratic implications of FRT

Cham : Springer, 2025, Law, governance and technology series ; 74,
This book focuses on facial recognition technology (FRT) and sheds light on previously unexplored aspects that involve systematic legal issues concerning its regulation, the protection of rights and freedoms, the preservation of democracy and the rule of law. FRT employs cutting-edge AI systems capable of processing biometric data for identification, verification and categorization purposes. Although there have been huge strides in the research and development of these systems in the last few decades and computer scientists are following and supporting this evolution, legal scholars have only been investigating the implications for fundamental rights for the past few years. The introduction of new regulations (especially the European Union AI Act) have turned the debate on its head, putting FRT in the spotlight. However, there are still certain aspects that have not yet been explored but will be crucial in the coming years for the democratic, social, technical, ethical, and legal acceptance of this technology. The contributions gathered here address various legal approaches to FRT that are emerging at the global level. In this regard, they particularly examine how the distinction between private and public entities' use of – and consequently also their respective rules on – FRT is becoming increasingly unclear, as some of the latest cases show. Other chapters highlight some of the most challenging and controversial aspects of deploying FRT for specific purposes, such as emotion recognition, and in highly complex contexts, such as smart cities. Furthermore, the papers focus on legal issues stemming from the most recent proposals at the EU level, namely those regarding AI and cybersecurity.

Il partito che non c'è : l'astensionismo elettorale in Italia e in Europa = The invisible party : the voter turnout crisis in Italy and Europe

Bologna : Il Mulino, 2025, Saggi,

La crescita dell'astensionismo elettorale minaccia la democrazia perché sempre più cittadini, disillusi dallo spettacolo politico, scelgono di tirarsi fuori dal gioco. Gli astenuti, però, non sono un esercito e nemmeno un partito: il fenomeno del non voto è infatti mutevole, complesso e articolato al proprio interno. Vittorio Mete e Dario Tuorto si interrogano sulle cause, le caratteristiche e le conseguenze sociali e politiche dell'astensionismo, senza trascurare qualche possibile rimedio. La loro riflessione si concentra sull'Italia, ma collocandola in un contesto comparato con altre democrazie occidentali, per evidenziare somiglianze e differenze. L'obiettivo è offrire una comprensione più profonda dell'astensionismo – sfatando miti e semplificazioni – e delinearne l'impatto sul futuro della politica.

Social life during COVID-19 in France, Germany, Italy and the UK

Cham : Palgrave Macmillan, 2025,

This book presents a thorough examination of how the COVID-19 pandemic impacted social life across four major European countries—France, Germany, Italy, and the UK. Drawing on high-quality longitudinal data, it investigates how personal, work, and political lives evolved during and after the pandemic, with particular focus on inequalities based on gender, age, and socio-economic status. The book offers unique insights into both short-term disruptions and longer-term resilience in society, highlighting changes in remote work, family life, and mental health. The book will appeal to scholars and students of sociology, political science, demography, and social policy seeking to understand the pandemic's complex social consequences.

Restrictive measures : the challenges in front of the EU : report on schemes employed to circumvent sanctions

Milan : Transcrime - Joint Research Centre on Transnational Crime, 2025, This report, carried out by Transcrime – Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore, explores the results of the first comprehensive analysis of the recurrent schemes used by sanctioned entities to evade international sanctions, with the aim of reducing the current gaps in sanctions enforcement thanks to a deeper understanding of the phenomenon. After a general assessment of the nature and effectiveness of sanctions (a more detailed review on this topic is available here) and of shortcomings in the enforcement framework, the report focuses on: - Most violated sanctions by category, region, goods, and assets. - The role of facilitators, corporate vehicles, and satellite jurisdictions. - Recurrent evasion schemes and transactions. - Policy implications and risk indicators. This document provides a comprehensive resource for public and private sector stakeholders for both investigation and due diligence purposes, and enabled the development of an advanced tool for assessing high-risk entities and for tracing and re-covering illicit assets, which is now made available to interested EU competent authorities for the purpose of tracing criminal assets and sanction evasion schemes.

Demand for EU polity building in the shadow of the Russian threat

Cambridge : Cambridge University Press, 2025, Elements in European politics,

The Russian invasion of Ukraine came on the heels of a series of crises that tested the resilience of the EU as a compound polity and arguably reshaped European policymaking at all levels. This Element investigates the effects of the invasion on public support for European polity building across four key policy domains: refugee policy, energy policy, foreign policy, and defence. It shows how support varies across four polity types (centralized, decentralized, pooled, reinsurance) stemming from a distinction between policy and polity support. In terms of the drivers of support and its evolution over time, performance evaluations and ideational factors appear as strong predictors, while perceived threat and economic vulnerability appear to matter less. Results show strong support for further resource pooling at the EU level in all domains that can lead to novel and differentiated forms of polity-building. This title is also available as Open Access on Cambridge Core.

Polish-Turkish relations from the Eighteenth through the Twentieth Century

New York : Routledge, 2025,

This interdisciplinary volume examines the longstanding and complex relations between Poland and Turkey from the 18th century to the present, exploring their cultural, diplomatic, political and economic dimensions. Drawing on extensive archival research across Europe and the Middle East, it presents a polyphonic narrative that highlights both shared interests and moments of divergence between the two states. The book analyses key themes such as public and cultural diplomacy, transcultural identities, stateless diplomacy, economic cooperation and contemporary foreign policy. It traces how these relations evolved despite periods of geopolitical instability and asymmetries of power, offering new insights into Eastern European and Middle Eastern entanglements. By reassessing Polish–Turkish ties through a longue durée lens, the book contributes to current debates on EU–Turkey relations and the relevance of historical models of cooperation in shaping contemporary international engagements. Rich in empirical material and combining historical, political and cultural analysis, the volume is essential reading for scholars and postgraduate students in international relations, Ottoman and East European history, political science and cultural diplomacy. Its fresh approach and innovative framework make it equally accessible to a broader audience, including policymakers, librarians and non-specialist readers interested in global history and regional connectivity.

Environmental NGOs and access to justice before the CJEU

Oxford : Hart Publishing, 2025, Modern studies in European law,
Published version of EUI PhD thesis, 2022;

This book tells a fascinating legal mobilisation story. Analysing EU environmental litigation over the last 30 years, it illustrates how the European environmental movement has patiently attempted and succeeded in expanding access to justice opportunities before the EU Courts. This is despite the longstanding reluctance of the EU Court of Justice to soften its standing requirements for private applicants bringing cases directly to Luxembourg. This research draws on both doctrinal analysis and qualitative methods of socio-legal inquiry. At its heart are interviews with key stakeholders: environmental lawyers, plaintiffs, and activists, which give an invaluable and innovative perspective on strategic litigation before the EU judiciary. With the growing emergency posed by the climate crisis and resultant increased litigation, this book makes a significant scholarly contribution to the study of environmental movements, to our conceptualisation of legal mobilisation, and to our understanding of the impact of litigation in European environmental law.

Research handbook on competition and technology

Cheltenham ; Northampton : Edward Elgar Publishing, 2025, Research handbooks in competition law, [Centre for a Digital Society]

This Research Handbook offers a thorough analysis of the complex relationship between digital technologies, competition and market dynamics, from a multidisciplinary perspective. Leading specialists in the field explore the evolution of competition enforcement in response to technological change and examine its intersections with other policy areas, such as data protection, intellectual property and labour law. A distinctive feature of the Handbook is its in-depth analysis of how competition policy tools have adapted to address the challenges posed by the unique attributes of digital technologies. This focus positions the Handbook as an invaluable resource for understanding the profound changes artificial intelligence will introduce to the competition policy landscape. Individual chapters discuss the different contexts in which competition and technology intersect, including; antitrust damages, e-commerce, information exchange, technological change and vertical agreements in relation to data and market power. The contributing authors also shed light on the impact of geopolitics on mergers and acquisitions, as well as the role of the gig economy in studies of labour law. Additional insights include case studies on antitrust policies on social media and an analysis of the landmark European Media Freedom Act legislation.

Legal mobilization for migrant rights : opportunities and barriers at the European Court of Justice

Oxford ; New York : Oxford University Press, 2025, Oxford studies in European law,

Published version of EUI PhD thesis, 2020;

The European Court of Justice plays a key role in the interpretation and enforcement of EU law. Yet, we still know little about the conditions under which cases arrive at the Court via preliminary reference and why they are so unevenly distributed across the EU Member States. Previous studies have shown how the legal elites played a central role in feeding the Court with cases to increase their power and influence. Legal Mobilization for Migrant Rights tells a different story. Focusing on the migration domain, this book shows that EU litigation can also be used to defend powerless groups. To explore the conditions under which EU legal mobilization for migrants emerges, the book compares three countries where EU migration law was mobilized before the European Court of Justice (Italy, the United Kingdom, and the Netherlands) and one where it was not (Greece). Combining empirical and doctrinal methods, this volume draws on interviews with key stakeholders and an original database of 505 migration preliminary references. Rather than focusing only on courts, Legal Mobilization for Migrant Rights sheds light on the role of lawyers, academics, and civil society in activating EU justice to oppose restrictive national migration policies. Crucially, the book ultimately reveals that EU legal mobilization struggles to emerge in some contexts due to a lack of resources and limited awareness of EU legal opportunities, which stand as significant obstacles to justice and migrant rights enforcement.

Competition law and policy in the Western Balkans

Cham : Springer, 2025, European Union and its neighbours in a globalized world ; 22,

This book analyses the development of competition law systems in the Western Balkans (WB) countries—Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia, and Serbia—over the past three decades. The primary focus is on examining the impact of aligning these legal systems with EU competition law. The book adopts a bottom-up approach to explore national competition law systems, addressing the particular challenges faced by individual jurisdictions that arise from the specificities of their legal traditions. In addition to detailed national reports on each jurisdiction, the final comparative chapter offers a horizontal examination of the WB’s competition law systems. In this pioneering study, we collect and analyse empirical data for WB jurisdictions from 2012 to 2022, encompassing both institutional and enforcement data. This approach provides unique and original insights into the development of competition law systems in these countries.

The welfare workforce : why mental health care varies across affluent democracies

Cambridge : Cambridge University Press, 2025, Cambridge studies in comparative politics,

The Welfare Workforce is a thought-provoking exploration of mental health care in the United States and beyond. Although all the affluent democracies pursued deinstitutionalization, some failed to provide adequate services, while others overcame challenges of stigma and limited resources and successfully expanded care. Isabel M. Perera examines the role of the “welfare workforce” in providing social services to those who cannot demand them. Drawing on extensive research in four countries – the United States, France, Norway, and Sweden – Perera sheds light on postindustrial politics and the critical part played by those who work for the welfare state. A must-read for anyone interested in mental health care, social services, and the politics of welfare, The Welfare Workforce challenges conventional wisdom and offers new insights into the complex factors that contribute to the success or failure of mental health care systems.

Deliberative innovation according to the decision-makers : a clash between perceptions and reality

Leiden : Brill, 2025, International studies in sociology and social anthropology ; 142,

Have you ever wondered why politicians reach for democratic innovations? How do they evaluate deliberative practices involving ordinary citizens and what political value do they ascribe to them? Do they want to put citizens’ perspectives at the centre of decision-making processes in the face of a growing crisis of representative democracy, or are their motivations more nuanced and instrumental? This book is an absolute must-read for anyone interested in the future of democracy, using unique data from in-depth interviews with local politicians to explore decision-makers' attitudes towards deliberative innovation and propose some truly effective ways to design it in relation to traditional representative institutions.

Storia globale dell'età contemporanea : dal dominio occidentale all'insicurezza multipolare

Roma : Carocci editore, 2025, Quality paperbacks ; 723,

Quella contemporanea è stata l'epoca dell'indiscusso apogeo dell'Occidente euro-americano che ha dominato l'economia, la tecnologia e le relazioni internazionali, nonostante il suo potere preminente, e spesso opprimente, nei confronti del Sud del mondo fosse lacerato da terribili conflitti intestini. Dopo le due guerre mondiali si cercò di dar vita a un sistema di norme e istituzioni per una convivenza più pacifica e cooperativa. Finita la Guerra fredda, sembrò schiudersi la possibilità di un ordine globale prospero e relativamente pacifico. Ma fu un'illusione passeggera. Nuove e vecchie potenze con agende ben diverse stanno ridefinendo norme ed equilibri. L'Occidente è nel gioco ma non lo controlla più. Antagonismi e tensioni tra attori diversi sospingono verso un mondo di nuovo in conflitto.

European security : from Ukraine to Washington

London : Bloomsbury Academic, 2025,

Exploring the ebb and flow of European security from the end of the Second World War to the present day, Richard Rose examines why security cannot be taken for granted today and what this means for the future of security in Europe. Since 1949 military security from the Black Sea to Washington's Potomac River has been guaranteed by NATO with the White House in command. He reminds us that masses of Europeans enjoyed unprecedented economic security as the European Union has replaced competition in armaments with competition in a single European market. The fall of the Berlin Wall and the Soviet Union restructured the map of Europe and encouraged the United States to turn toward China. However, Vladimir Putin's attempt to revive a Soviet-style version of security by invading Ukraine has stimulated aid to Ukraine as it fights a proxy war to protect the security of Europe. Looking ahead, Rose asks whether European governments are able to defend themselves as America's commitment to Europe becomes less reliable; the challenge to Europe of helping fund the reconstruction of Ukraine; questions the conditions in which the European Union and NATO could admit Ukraine as a member; and sets out where Britain fits in as a NATO but not an EU member-state.

EU trade governance : assessing Prometheus?

Florence : European University Institute, 2025,

EUI, RSC, Global Governance Programme

This e-book draws its origin from a High-Level Policy dialogue that took place on January 10-11, 2024, in Turin and reproduces some of its contributions. The goal is to provide concepts and perspectives to better understand the current evolution of EU trade policy and the governance role the EU plays and could play in international trade affairs. The authors speculate on the EU's action in an increasingly geopolitical world, its relation with multilateralism and the World Trade Organisation ("WTO"), the evolution of Preferential Trade Agreements ("PTAs"), in particular with respect to sustainability issues, the increasing use of unilateral or "autonomous" instruments. Far than offering a final assessment, which is both difficult and premature, the e-book offers a rich food for thought. What emerges is the ambivalent nature of current EU trade policy, both innovative and controversial, which makes it alike to the mythological figure of Prometheus and what it represents.

A microhistory of early modern transatlantic migration : the frigate Agata (1747)

Abingdon ; New York : Routledge, 2025, Microhistories,

This microhistory of early modern transatlantic migration follows the journey of the Agata, a Dutch frigate hired by Spanish merchants in 1747 to travel between Cádiz and Veracruz. Manned by migrants from across Europe, the Agata was intercepted by British privateers on its return trip, an event that led to the preservation of most of the documents on board, including a collection of personal letters. Through a microscopical lens, this book delves into the lives of some of the migrants linked to the Agata, either as members of the crew—a ship, after all, is a moving workplace—as passengers, or as people sending letters through the ship. Their stories and anecdotes illustrate how early modern migrants in the Spanish Atlantic navigated the often-restrictive migration laws, stayed connected with family and friends back home, sent remittances and gifts, and built networks to support new migrants. A Microhistory of Early Modern Transatlantic Migration is written for anyone interested in the history of migration, regardless of their familiarity with the specific historical context. It aims to engage both specialists and general readers interested in migration, labour, seafaring, and social history. This book also seeks to bridge some gaps between contemporary migration studies and migration history, serving as an introduction to these fields for non-specialist readers while providing new insights from unpublished sources not previously examined by other historians, and offered in translation.

Legal construction of common humanity : human agency in a cosmopolitan war crimes law

Brussels : Torkel Opsahl Academic EPublisher, 2025, Publication Series ; 46, Published version of EUI PhD thesis, 2023;

The project of a cosmopolitan war crimes law seeks to make law "morally meaningful". Subject to changing political and social conditions, legal rules and practices are inevitably complex, fragmentary and often inconsistent. In contrast to the "transient, unstructured, pragmatic" legal reality is legal philosophy's never-ending effort to find "system and coherence in legal doctrine". One of the important rationalization tasks for legal philosophers is to find moral meaning in rules. It would be "self-defeating" for law to claim only legality and not "moral correctness" or justice. The claim to correctness is integral to any norm as "justificatory reasons". For law not to be "mere abstraction" or an alien imposition, it must have moral content. For this purpose, moral and political theories can offer a certain "valuational frame of reference” or “matrix of justice”. Internal moral meaning is central to criminal law which proclaims social solidarity in vital moral issues.

Where eagles do not dare : moderate revisionism in international politics

Cham : Palgrave Macmillan, 2025, Palgrave studies in international relations, When and how do great and middle powers moderately challenge the status quo? These compelling questions have largely been overlooked in International Relations literature, which typically views the cyclical rise of revolutionary revisionist great powers as an unchanging aspect of international politics. Conventional thinking suggests that after peace or major agreements are established, a new international status quo emerges, provoking major dissatisfied states to challenge it. Sometimes, these challenges escalate to full-scale wars or intense competitions with the status quo powers—those committed to defending and maintaining current conditions. Yet, revisionism does not always manifest as great power war or outright competition; it can take more moderate forms. This book addresses this neglected puzzle with two key aims. The first is explicative, seeking to provide a solid and novel causal explanation of this recurring phenomenon in international politics. The second aim is typological: to construct a more nuanced and precise typology of revisionism that focuses on foreign policy means. To validate its new theoretical framework, the book examines three case studies—the United States, Italy, and China—spanning three distinct regions and historical contexts and featuring diverse political regimes: the late 19th century, the interwar period, and the Cold War.

Handbook of European strategic autonomy

Milan : McGraw Hill, 2025,

In an era defined by great power competition, regional instability, and shifting alliances, Europe faces a crucial question: can it act strategically on its own? This volume offers an in-depth examination of the evolving concept of European strategic autonomy, unpacking its ambitions, constraints, and prospects. Bringing together leading scholars and practitioners, the book explores both the political and material dimensions of autonomy, comparing national approaches from Italy, France, Germany, and the Baltic states, while assessing the roles of NATO, the United States, and the European Union. It delves into defence capabilities, industrial and technological sovereignty, and the geopolitical pressures reshaping Europe’s security agenda. Rigorous yet accessible, the volume provides essential analytical tools for understanding Europe’s strategic dilemmas at a moment of profound global change. It is a valuable resource for scholars, policymakers, and professionals in security and international affairs.

European integration through open-ended mechanisms

Lisbon : Universidade Católica Editora, 2025, Varia,

This book examines the building of the European Union's governance framework from the perspective of the sustainability of the European integration process. It departs from the premise that the evolution of that framework depends on some degree of preference convergence to have occurred or to occur. The book focuses on two fundamental EU institutions that were built as open-ended mechanisms: Economic and Monetary Union and the European Green Deal. In doing so, it also discusses the importance of 'openness' to further political integration and the limits of differentiated integration.

Pandemic polity-building : how Covid-19 shaped the European Union

Oxford : Oxford University Press, 2025,

This book tells the unlikely story of how the European Union survived COVID-19, which came on the heels of a difficult decade during which the EU wrestled with repeated crises, from the Euro area, to refugees, populism, and geopolitics. Against all odds, a divided polity with a weak center and low competences in crucial policy domains, managed to overcome powerful disincentives to coordinate its way out of the pandemic and built central capacity. We argue that this puzzling outcome stems from COVID-19's crisis characteristics and the EU's polity features. The relative symmetric nature of the pandemic and the deeply disruptive economic shocks revealed the potential long-term externalities of a lack of joint action at the European level. The EU suspended the fiscal and state aid rules, coordinated a common vaccine procurement scheme, and pooled its fiscal firepower. Our polity perspective shows how the EU overcame conflicts and managed to coordinate and create new capacity in its center while relying on a new geography of solidarity within the EU. The polity approach allows us to show how the EU did not take a federal path to polity formation. Instead, it moved toward a polity that serves as an imperfect but solidaristic safety net for its member states. Our polity approach offers a more fine-grained argument than "more or less integration" through a triptych of concepts (bonding, i.e., solidarity, binding, i.e., capacity building and bounding, i.e., bordering) that capture both the supply and demand side of politics.

This timely Research Agenda introduces new directions for study and practice, presenting insights into the role of environmental law in securing a sustainable society. Josephine van Zeben and Chris Hilson bring together a wide range of expert contributors to analyse cutting-edge developments in environmental law. Drawing on interdisciplinary material, they introduce novel conceptual frameworks and explore important topics including degrowth, rewilding, circular economy, the regenerative, corporate climate litigation and sustainable finance. A Research Agenda for Environmental Law highlights pressing legal strategies and avenues for development that will help address the triple planetary crises of climate change, biodiversity loss and pollution.

Citizenship acquisition by immigrants and their descendants : an international legal comparison

Florence : European University Institute, 2025, EUI, RSC, Global Governance Programme, [GLOBALCIT]

This report, commissioned by the State Secretariat for Migration (SEM) in Switzerland, provides a comparative study of conditions and procedures for the acquisition of citizenship by foreign immigrants (first generation) and their descendants (second and third generation) in Europe. The focus of the study is on 11 selected European countries: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, Latvia, the Netherlands, Portugal, Sweden, and the United Kingdom. This study includes an in-depth comparison of the conditions and procedures for residence-based naturalisation, for citizenship acquisition by children and young adults, and for citizenship acquisition based on birth in the country. The study also covers counselling and information provisions. To ensure a systematic and comprehensive comparison of the requirements and procedures for citizenship acquisition across countries, we draw on the internationally recognized comparative framework developed within the Global Citizenship Observatory (GLOBALCIT).

Bridging epistemic divides in cultural heritage protection : an exercise in confrontation and conversation

Special issue of International journal of cultural property, 2025, Vol. 32, No. 1, This special cluster was first conceived in May 2023 during a workshop entitled “Bridging epistemic divides in cultural heritage protection: An exercise in confrontation and conversation” at the European University Institute (EUI), Florence. The workshop aimed to bring together individuals involved in cultural heritage lawmaking and policy across different geographic and intellectual spaces. As researchers in cultural heritage policy, we have often felt both perplexed and frustrated by the ways in which notions of expertise create divisions between people and their knowledge. What we found even more puzzling was that only certain disciplines seem interested in examining these barriers. For instance, critical heritage studies frequently address absences and biases in norm-making, whereas fields like international law and history are often reluctant to recognize their roles in maintaining epistemic inequalities. Our workshop sought to break down these disciplinary silos as a step toward overcoming epistemic exclusions.

Rhythms of class : socio-economic disparities and peer dynamics in secondary school choice

Amsterdam : Universiteit van Amsterdam, 2025, PhD thesis, ICS Dissertation series ; 349,

Schools tend to be segregated based on socio-economic status (SES), raising concerns about unequal educational opportunities and the broader impact on civic engagement and social cohesion. A key factor contributing to school segregation is that families from different socio-economic backgrounds face unequal opportunities to exert choice and express different preferences for schooling. This dissertation examines socio-economic disparities in secondary school choice in the Netherlands, focusing on two underexplored aspects: educational differentiation and the peer context. The findings reveal that school choice is socially stratified in multiple ways, with families of different SES backgrounds making other decisions regarding a school’s track offer, ability grouping practices, and, in some cases, specialized profiles. Furthermore, school choice is a social decision. Understanding (socio-economic disparities in) school choice requires looking beyond isolated family-level choice processes and considering the peer context in which preferences for schooling develop. While peer networks can help mitigate educational disadvantages for lower SES students, their segregated nature limits this compensatory effect. Lower SES students appear more susceptible to network effects in school choice but are also less likely to be part of resource-rich primary school networks due to segregation between and within schools. These findings underscore the need for school desegregation and integration efforts to promote equality of educational opportunities.
