

The EUI has an open vacancy for a

Research Assistant in the Department of History and Civilization

Florence, 3 June 2022

Updated on 10 June 2022

Reference: V/RA/HEC/2/2022

Who we are

The European University Institute (EUI) at a glance:

- an international organisation set up in 1972;
- a research university focusing exclusively on postgraduate, doctoral and post-doctoral studies, and advanced research;
- located in the hills overlooking the city of Florence, Italy.

The Institute also hosts the Historical Archives of the European Union.

The Department of History focuses on the history of Europe in the World from the 15th century to the present. Its members share a common endeavour to rethink the history of Europe with an expanded focus on transnational connections and circulation of ideas, goods and people, and with specific attention to Europeans' diverse roles and places in the world. The Department specializes in the comparative, transnational and global history of Europe in a long-term perspective, in order to make sense of long cycles of transformation and of the sedimentation of ideas, institutions, social and political formations that have defined Europeans.

Employment details

Contract type

Part-time 9/30, 12 hours/week.

Length of contract

12 months. Start date 1 September 2022 (negotiable).

This contract may be further renewed (several times and conditional to the availability of funds), leading to an extension of the period of service up to a total of 5 years, including the first contract period.

Salary indication and grade

Grade: ASTAC1e step 1

The basic net monthly salary after taxes is approximately 770 Euro, plus allowances if applicable.

More information about conditions of employment is available here.

Place of work

To be agreed with Project Director.

About the project

Project Director(s)

Prof. Laura Lee Downs

Project details

Social Politics in European Borderlands. A Comparative and Transnational Study, 1870s-1990s (SOCIOBORD).

SOCIOBORD is a 5-year ERC project that began in September 2020. It seeks to reframe the history of welfare and social care in modern Europe by restoring to view the contribution of families and associations to shaping welfare systems in three borderland regions of north-western, eastern, and south-eastern Europe from the 1870s till the 1990s. By focusing on the interactions among local actors and following developments from the late 19th century to the 1990s, this project turns our attention to the co-construction of welfare by public and private actors in highly mixed borderlands, where the reach of central states often fluctuated and a range of local welfare structures, based on national, but also non-national forms of identity/solidarity (e.g., occupation, gender or religion) flourished. We will do this by conducting intensively researched local case studies in the chosen borderland regions: Galicia, the North-eastern Adriatic and the Franco/Belgian/German border regions. Each case study will investigate how families and voluntary associations negotiated over entitlements to welfare, focusing in particular on support to children, veterans and working-class women. The case studies will then be placed in comparative and transnational frameworks so as to facilitate the analysis of similarities and differences between north-western, eastern and south-eastern borderlands while tracing the circulation of ideas, people and practices. Rather than treating borderlands as peripheries, SOCIOBORD approaches them as laboratories for the development of social protection, thanks to the dense variety of actors competing for influence over their putative objects of assistance and for access to material resources. Ultimately, the goal is to restore to view the vital role that families and voluntary welfare associations have long played in creating and delivering new forms of social welfare in Europe's many borderland regions. For the long-range historical study of local actors' ideas and practices around social welfare in European borderlands has much to tell us about the development of welfare across Europe in general.

Job description

The research assistant will provide research assistance to the Director of the project. Main tasks include:

- Developing a case study on the female labour force in the industrial enterprises in the borderland region of Eastern Galicia from the 1920s through the socialist period;
- Contributing to the development of SOCIOBORD's comparative and transnational methodologies;
- Contributing to the project's collective publications;
- Contributing to the project's dissemination efforts.

Qualifications and experience

Qualifications and Experience

Essential:

- BA in History;
- Proven expertise in the fields of borderlands studies, social history, history of modern associational life;
- Familiarity with histories of working-class women, gender history;
- Demonstrated experience in working with the categories of age, gender, ethnicity and nationality in intersectional manner;
- Proven experience in participating in international research collaborations.

Desirable:

- PhD, preferably in modern European social history.

Languages

Excellent knowledge of Ukrainian and Russian, both written and spoken (CEFR level: C2).

Knowledge of English (CEFR level: C1 or above) constitutes an advantage.

How to apply

Deadline

The closing date for applications is ~~17 June 2022~~ 27 June 2022 at midnight (Florence time) For more information contact Laura Borgese, laura.borgese@eui.eu .

Contact details

How to apply

Fill in the online application form and upload documents as requested, including:

1. CV in English (2 pages max)
2. Short description of a proposed case study (2 pages max)
3. Cover letter in English (approx. 1 page)