Working in the European University Institute

The European University Institute is a postgraduate research institute set up in 1976 by the Member States of the European Union. It is not an institution of the European Union, but an intergovernmental organisation in its own right, funded directly by the signatory Member States.

The EUI consists of four academic departments - Economics, History and Civilisation, Law, and Political and Social Sciences; an interdisciplinary postdoctoral training programme – the Max Weber Programme; an interdisciplinary research centre - the Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies; and the School of Transnational Governance, focussing on teaching and training of governance beyond the State. The research students of the EUI are drawn mainly from the graduates of universities in the Member States, with a small number of students from third countries globally.

There are no special citizenship requirements for faculty members. In order to work effectively the professors have to be fluent in English and have a working knowledge of at least one other EU language. Teaching is mostly done in English. PhD theses and seminar papers are mainly written in English, but a number of them are written in French, German, Spanish, Italian or in other European languages.

The Department of Political and Social Sciences

The Department of Political and Social Sciences (SPS) is one of Europe's leading centres for research and doctoral studies in comparative politics and public policy, political behaviour and political sociology, the sociology of inequality and social demography, analytic sociology, the welfare state and political economy, and international relations and security. We focus on contemporary challenges facing European politics and societies, with a meta-theoretical interest in the interplay of institutional dynamics with their behavioral context. Our faculty, doctoral researchers and postdocs come from a broad range of countries spanning all of Europe and beyond.

The Department favours a multi-faceted approach to research projects and theses, many of which cut across the conventional boundaries. The Department also encourages broader cross-disciplinary work. It has good working relations in both teaching and research with the departments of Law, History and Economics, and with the Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies, and is at the centre of extensive international networks. It hosts a number of large, collaborative projects financed by the European Commission Framework programmes or other external sources. The Department also has many individual projects resulting in single-authored books and articles.

Teaching and Supervision

The teaching contract requires Institute professors to conduct not less than 60 hours of teaching in the course of the academic year, in addition to their supervision of individual researchers. The teaching is organised in three terms: the first runs from October to December, the second from January to Easter, and the third from Easter to June. During the first two terms teaching mainly takes the form of ten two-hour seminars. In the third term more use is made of day-long workshops and other innovative methods, designed to meet particular training needs of small groups of researchers.

Typically, some 35 to 40 research students are admitted to the department's doctoral programme each year. As researchers will stay at the Institute for four years, each faculty member may expect to supervise, on average, 16 researchers – that is, some 4 new researchers per year.

Faculty members are obliged, by contract, to continue supervision of their researchers even after they have left the Institute

Research

Apart from teaching and supervision, the major part of professors' work is devoted to research. Research at the Institute is supported by an excellent Academic Library. The Library's principal collection consists of traditional resources of printed books, documents and journals, and digital resources. The paper collections include some 546 current printed journals and more than 589,000 printed volumes in law, economics, history, political science sociology and international relations, completed with over 142,000 full text e-journals and over 598,000 e-books, numerous databases and networked CD-ROMs. The Library boasts a highly-qualified team of professionals, which includes information specialists and liaison officers, who provide support to the four departments, the Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies, the School of Transnational Governance and all post-doctoral programmes.

The ICT Service is user-oriented and has good resources for research in all areas of social and political sciences and the humanities.

The EUI hosts the Historical Archives of the European Union (HAEU) which preserve and make available to the public the documents produced by European Institutions, some European Agencies, as well as private archives and collections of European movements and personalities.

Each professor normally receives a flat allocation of currently € 6.500 a year upon presentation of a short description of his/her project. Supplementary funding may be obtained on a yearly basis from the Institute's Research Council, which is composed of external advisors, for innovative projects and for co-operative projects involving several professors. Research projects should have an international dimension. Although no guarantee can be offered, EUI funding usually allows for the employment of a part-time assistant and for organising seminars and workshops. In addition, professors are strongly encouraged to raise external funds.

Applicants are requested to present a research project for the duration of about five years (which corresponds to first contract). If short-listed, this project will serve as a basis for discussion during the interview, and if appointed, be circulated to members of the Academic Council.

Administrative Duties

Departmental meetings are held monthly. One faculty member acts as Head of Department, and meets frequently with the Heads of other Departments and with the President of the Institute to prepare the meetings of the Institute faculty, the Academic Council. All professors are required to be present in the Departmental meetings and in the plenary sessions of the Academic Council.

Professors also have the responsibility of screening applications for the doctoral programme and for post-doctoral fellowships. Professors are expected to participate in committees to select new colleagues. Some colleagues serve on Institute-level committees, dealing with Library and ICT issues, Admissions, etc. These committees do not occupy more than a very small part of professors' time.

Staff in the Department

The Department of Political and Social Sciences comprises 15 professorial chairs, (three joint with the Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies), a Departmental administrative coordinator and five administrative assistants. Details of the research and teaching interests of the professors are available on the Department's web page. Each year about five or six funded Fernand Braudel Fellows join the Department for limited periods, and a number of Visiting Fellows come for periods between half a year and a year. The Institute also hosts some fifty Max Weber postdoctoral fellows. This is a free-standing interdisciplinary training programme and around a dozen of these Max Weber Fellows are associated with the Department of Political and Social Sciences. In addition, a number of scholars visit the Department each year for shorter periods.

The recruitment procedure at the EUI

The rules governing the selection procedure of full-time Professors are laid down in Annex III the Conditions of Employment of the Teaching Staff of the EUI (CETS).

When a chair is vacant, the Department submits a profile for the chair to be filled to the Academic Council, which sets up the Selection Committee.

The selection committee is composed of professors from the EUI, external experts, the President of the EUI (consultative voice) and a representative of the researcher students (consultative voice). The Academic Service is in charge of the secretariat.

According to the Annex III of Conditions of Employment of the Teaching Staff of the EUI, the Selection Board shall:

- assess how well the academic curriculum and experience of candidates fit the profile of the post to be filled;
- take candidates' publications into consideration;
- assess candidates' suitability to fit in the Department's and the Institute's work programme in consultation with the Department;
- assess the interest to the Institute of research planned by candidates.

In the shortlisting process, the committee members first assess the eligibility and the suitability to the advertised profile of the applications submitted. In a second step, after consensus has been reached among the Committee regarding the first step, the Committee discusses the candidates that fulfil the criteria, and in a comparative evaluation, taking into account the needs of the hosting academic unit regarding the position, sets up the final shortlist.

Having set up a shortlist the Committee subsequently interviews the shortlisted candidates and submits a recommendation of one or more candidates to be appointed.

The Committee's recommendation is transmitted to the Academic Council, which acts as a sovereign body for appointments.

The schedule we would like to adhere to is the following:

- shortlisting decisions should be made by mid July 2022;
- interviews and departmental presentations will take place 19-20 September 2022;
