

Chair in Economic and/or Political Sociology

The Florence School of Transnational Governance (STG) looks to appoint an outstanding scholar in Economic Sociology or adjacent fields such as Political Sociology and Micro-Political Economy. We invite applications from candidates whose research and teaching link sociological and political-economic perspectives to illuminate transformations in capitalism, democracy, and governance in an interconnected, transnational context.

We are looking for exceptional candidates with a strong scholarly focus in areas including, but not limited to, the digital and financial dimensions of capitalism, global value chains and inequality, international financial governance and corporate power, climate change and sustainable transitions, and the political economy of labour and business.

We particularly welcome scholars who examine these themes through comparative and transnational lenses, investigating how institutions, markets, and organizations interact across borders and shape multilevel governance. The ideal candidate combines disciplinary depth with interdisciplinary openness to analyse and theorise how governance and economic arrangements evolve in today's global society.

The successful candidate will contribute to research, teaching, and policy dialogues within the Florence STG's Master and Executive Education programmes and the wider intellectual community of the European University Institute. The position offers a unique opportunity to engage with international scholars, policymakers, and practitioners, advancing debates beyond the nation-state.

Candidates should be able to teach core and elective courses in the MTnG and Global Executive Master (GEM) programmes, including Master-level thesis supervision and executive training. They will play an active role in developing the STG's programmes and community, contributing to institutional management, student recruitment, and PhD research supervision across related EUI departments.

Applicants should have the following qualities:

- A PhD in economic and/or political sociology or related social science fields with a proven publication record.
- Innovative approach and strong experience in research and teaching at the Master level (including designing courses and curricula, monitoring internships, outlining and guiding capstone projects, and thesis supervision);
- Very good academic and institutional (potentially also with the private sector) relations relevant for the STG's activities;
- Strong ability to communicate and develop partnerships;
- Organisational experience and proven ability to attract funds;
- Strong ability to work in a multi-cultural environment with students and stakeholders from all over the world.
- Excellent command of English and knowledge of other languages;

The Chair will be a member of the STG's faculty and expected to dedicate time to the School and its related activities, including the profiling of the scientific programme, the building of the STG student community, dissemination activities, and attracting funds.

The Institute is an equal opportunity employer, and is committed to balanced gender, geographical and minority representation. The contract is for five years, renewable for a further three years conditional upon satisfactory performance appraisal and availability of funds.

European University Institute

The European University Institute (EUI) is an international organization created by treaty in 1972; it opened its doors to its first 70 researchers in 1976. The EUI has grown to incorporate academics from across the globe, spanning borders and staying true to its mission of the 1970s: to 'foster the advancement of learning in fields which are of particular interest for the development of Europe'. The Institute has 23 Contracting States: Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Cyprus, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Luxembourg, Malta, the Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain and Sweden. The EUI is funded by its 23 Contracting States, the European Union (Erasmus+), and its own revenue, drawn from competitive research funding, partnerships with public and private actors, and executive education.

The EUI consists of four academic departments - Economics, History and Civilisation, Law, and Political and Social Sciences – and two academic units: the Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies; and the Florence the School of Transnational Governance.

The Florence School of Transnational Governance

Founded in 2017, the Florence School of Transnational Governance \(STG\) is a vibrant and inclusive community of academics driven by a sense of urgency to create new ways of addressing the most important transnational challenges of our time. Through its core activities of research, education, and dialogue, the School acts as a hub at the intersection of transnationalism, governance, and European values.

The STG's 300-strong community – including 150 students – come together around its three pillars: (i) the two-year Master of Arts in Transnational Governance (MTnG); (ii) Executive Education for practitioners, including the two-year Global Executive Master (GEM); (iii) fellowship programmes, including the Policy Leaders Fellows. In parallel, the School hosts several large, externally funded programmes at the forefront of public policy for the public good in areas such as climate policy, disinformation, Artificial Intelligence and democracy.

The STG is deeply rooted in the drivers of the European project, including fundamental values of democracy, inclusiveness, dignity, respect, diversity, solidarity, and sustainability. By adopting an open, critical and reflexive approach to European integration and Europe's place in the world, the School has been able to foster dialogue between public and private stakeholders.

The STG's research-based approach to transnational governance is informed by, and synergetic to, the activities of the European University Institute's departments and the Robert Schuman Centre. From its inception, the STG has aimed to collaborate beyond the walls of academia and actively incorporates other social partners in its policy innovation projects for the public good: including EU institutions and several of its agencies, European governments and international organisations, philanthropies, NGOs and the private sector.

The recruitment procedure at the EUI

The rules governing the selection procedure of full-time Professors are laid down in Annex III the Conditions of Employment of the Teaching Staff of the EUI (CETS).

When a chair is vacant, the Academic Unit submits a profile for the chair to be filled to the Academic Council, which sets up the Selection Board.

The Selection Board is composed of professors from the EUI, external experts, the President of the EUI or their delegate (consultative voice) and a representative of the researchers/students (consultative voice). Professorial Recruitment is in charge of the secretariat.

According to the Annex III of Conditions of Employment of the Teaching Staff of the EUI, the Selection Board shall:

- assess how well the academic curriculum and experience of candidates fit the profile of the post to be filled;
- take candidates' publications into consideration;
- assess candidates' suitability to fit in the Academic Unit's and the Institute's work programme in consultation with the Academic Unit;
- assess the interest to the Institute of research planned by candidates.

In the selection process, the Board's members first assess the eligibility and the suitability of the applications submitted to the advertised profile. The Board then discusses the candidates that fulfil the criteria and, in a comparative evaluation which takes the needs of the hosting academic unit into account agrees on the final shortlist.

The shortlisted candidates are invited to be interviewed by the Selection Board, which submits a recommendation of one or more candidates to be appointed. The Board takes its decisions by consensus, or where necessary, by the majority vote of its members.

The Board's recommendation is transmitted to the EUI's Executive Committee and then to the Academic Council, which acts as a sovereign body for appointments.
