

EUROPEAN UNIVERSITY INSTITUTE
ACADEMIC SERVICE
Dr. Andreas C. Frijdal
Head of Service

Florence, May 2006

Vacant chairs at the European University Institute

CHAIR IN ECONOMIC LAW

Please find attached an information pack about the Institute and a note setting out further particulars for chair holders in the Department.

Your application should contain the following documents:

- Your curriculum vitae
- An application form, to be completed and returned to us, in which you are invited to provide us with your personal data, the names of four referees, and to list 3 - 5 of your publications you consider most relevant to the post for which you are applying.
- A short research proposal. The research proposal is expected to be of 4 – 5 pages of length and to outline the research you plan to undertake during the first five years were you to be appointed at the Institute. It should give a clear picture of research you want to develop and its relevance for Department's programme and profile. A financial statement is not required, but if you have potential external resources for the funding of the project, they can be mentioned.

The Academic Service assures the strict confidentiality of the application procedure. The deadline for receipt of applications is 15 September 2006.

Further and more up-to-date information about the Institute can be gathered from our website: <http://www.iue.it>.

We thank you for your interest in the European University Institute and wish you every success with your application.

NB: We accept electronic applications, and in fact welcome them. The e-mail address is applypro@iue.it.

Please do not send us your publications; in the event, they may not be returned to you.

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Andreas Frijdal

FURTHER PARTICULARS ABOUT FACULTY POSITIONS IN THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW

Job description for the vacant chair

The Department of Law calls for applications for a Chair in Economic Law which will become vacant on 1 October 2007.

The Chair to become vacant is at present held by Professor Christian Joerges.

The Department is especially interested in applicants who have experience and expertise in private and public dimensions of economic law at national and European levels, covering both the creation of markets and their regulation in pursuit of general interests (such as consumer protection). Preference will be given to candidates who complement the existing research and supervision capacities of the Department.

Candidates should have a distinguished record of research and publication and a strong commitment towards excellence in post-graduate supervision and teaching.

The Department is committed to linguistic diversity in its teaching and research activities. Candidates should have a good knowledge of at least two of the more widely used European Union languages.

The contract is for five years, renewable once for a period of three years. The Institute is an equal opportunity employer and it takes into account the importance of balance in gender, geographical and minority representation.

The successful candidates will be expected to provide major input in research, teaching and management, as follows:

Research:

- To develop and lead research in the fields mentioned in the profile;
- To promote the integration of his/her research with other research interests within the Department of Law as well as interdisciplinary research with the other Departments and Centres of the EUI; candidates are invited to take into consideration the research priorities and existing research projects of the Department (<http://www.iue.it/LAW/ResearchTeaching/ResearchProjects.shtml>).

- To maintain a high national and international profile of publications in books and in internationally recognised journals;
- To attract research income on an individual basis and in collaboration with others.

Teaching:

- To teach effectively for postgraduate students both in introductory and research seminars;
- To provide high quality postgraduate supervision and attract research students to the EUI.

Management:

- To make a significant contribution to the promotion of the EUI in his/her country's academic community, and to contribute to the insertion of EUI alumni in professional life, especially in academic careers;
- To make the best use of his/her research budget and try to complement it with outside funding;
- To provide support for the Head of Department, amongst others by serving on appropriate Committees, and to contribute fully to the general life of the Department and the Institute;
- To contribute to the promotion of cultural diversity in the Department and the EUI.

Working in the European University Institute

The European University Institute is a postgraduate research institute set up in 1976 by the Member States of the European Union. It is not an institution of the European Union, however: rather, it is an international treaty organisation in its own right, funded directly by the signatory states.

The EUI consists of four academic departments - Economics, History and Civilization, Law, and Political and Social Sciences - and an interdisciplinary centre - the Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies - supported by administrative, computing and library staff. The research students of the EUI are drawn mainly from the graduates of universities in the Member States, though some students come from Central and Eastern European and Mediterranean countries, and a small number of students from outside Europe.

In order to work effectively we all have to be fluent in English and at least one other EU language. Teaching is done mainly in English, but a number of seminars are also held in French and some sessions are held in German or Italian. Theses and seminar papers are usually written mainly in English or in French, but a number of them are written in German, Spanish or Italian, some in other European languages if the supervisor reads them. As a matter of fact, all EU official languages are also EUI official languages, although currently used as working languages are English, French and Italian (for administration mainly). Une bonne compréhension du français écrit et parlé est également nécessaire du fait que beaucoup les réunions du Département de droit ont lieu en anglais et français, chacun utilisant la langue dans laquelle il se sent le plus à l'aise.

Moreover, and this is very important for lawyers, we all have to take into account that our students come not only from all the EU member states, but also from other European countries as well and also from overseas. This means that their legal education is mainly based on single language studies and culture. Therefore, a good awareness of the differences between common law systems and European continental law systems and of the diversity within the latter is necessary in order to teach and supervise effectively. Cultural differences also emerge in all academic matters both on content and in substance. They are as a matter of fact one of the elements that make the EUI a place that is both attractive and not easy to cope with.

The Department of Law

The Department's focus is on the European, comparative and international dimensions of legal scholarship, and it seeks to promote interdisciplinary approaches to the study of law.

Teaching and Supervision

As we only have postgraduate students, our teaching only takes the form of seminars (about one two-hour session a week). We do not have a regular curriculum, as we have to take account of variations in student intake, but we try to offer a number of introductory seminars (again, at post-graduate level) as well as research seminars where the students' ongoing work is mainly discussed, as well as our own research projects. No difference is made in teaching between first year students in the doctoral programme and LLM students. A major part of our activity with students is thesis supervision, both in the doctoral programme (minimum of three years) as in the LLM (one year) programme. This is why residence in Florence is compulsory even outside of the teaching periods.

Research

Apart from teaching and supervision, the major part of our work is devoted to research. Each professor receives funding for his/her research project(s), on a yearly basis and upon decision of our Research Council, which is composed of outsiders coming from academia and practice. Each professor normally will get a flat allocation of about 10.000 € a year for his/her projects upon presentation of a short description of the projects. Supplementary funding may be obtained from the Research council for seed money for innovative projects and for co-operative projects involving several different professors. Research projects should have an international dimension both in input and in output. Although no guarantee can be offered on this point, EUI funding usually allows for the employment of a part-time assistant and for bringing together some specialists.

In addition, professors are strongly encouraged to raise external funds as the internal resources can cover only part of the needs. The EUI administration has the relevant expertise to assist them in their fund raising efforts.

You are requested to present a research project for the duration of about five years (which corresponds to the contract) as a basis for your application. This project will serve as a basis for discussion during your interview. It might only be a part of the actual research projects you will conduct during your stay, as opportunities for new developments might emerge as well within the EUI as from outside, due to call for proposals from research funding organisations.

Administrative Duties

Departmental meetings are held monthly. One faculty member acts as Head of Department, and meets frequently with the Heads of other Departments and with the President of the Institute to prepare the monthly meeting of all faculty at the Institute, the Academic Council, and make many routine decisions.

In addition, professors participate in processing the applications for the doctoral programme and for post-doctoral fellowships. From time to time professors are expected to participate in committees to select new colleagues. Some colleagues serve on Institute-level committees, dealing with Library and Information Technology issues, with Computing Services, with Admissions, etc. These committees do not occupy more than a very small part of professors' time.

Staff in the Department

The Department of Law comprises at present 12 professors representing eight different nationalities, (two hold a joint appointment with the Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies), a Departmental assistant and four secretaries. Each year about 6-8 Max Weber Fellows join us for a limited period in order to work on their post-doctoral research projects. These often work closely with an individual professor or group of professors. In addition, a number of scholars visit the Department each year for shorter periods, offering seminar presentations in their fields of interest.

The Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies

The Centre was created in 1992 in order to develop interdisciplinary research and to encourage work on the contemporary challenges of European integration. It consists of senior faculty (holding joint chairs with departments), post-doctoral fellows, research fellows and assistants, together with an administrative staff. Its research agenda is focused around several core research themes, currently: European institutions, constitutions and governance; European competition and regulation; the European economy; knowledge and culture, the knowledge economy,; and Europe's international relations. The Centre draws its income from a variety of sources, with around two thirds from externally funded grants. It runs an extensive conference programme, and publishes working papers, policy papers, books and several on-line series and research tools. Some of its research activities are organised in special programmes, including a Transatlantic Programme and a Mediterranean Programme. The Centre has organised for many years an Annual EU Competition Law and Policy Workshop, initiated by Giuliano Amato and Claus-Dieter Ehlermann; this brings together leading practitioners and academics to discuss critical legal and policy issues in the application of EU competition law, as a European counterpart to the Fordham Corporate Law Institute's annual meetings on antitrust law. The Centre also addresses other European regulatory issues, including via the development of the Florence School of Regulation, founded in 2004. Research in these areas draws on faculty and researchers' interests across the Institute in law, economics and political science. Other current initiatives include a large FP6 project on New Modes of Governance, another on Mediterranean migration, research on knowledge markets and technological innovation, a programme on European monetary union. A continuing priority is to produce research and to stimulate debate on issues of reform within the European Union. The Centre has recently reinforced its coverage of security in Europe (internal and external).

There are currently eight joint chairs based in the Centre. Holders of joint chairs are expected to develop a line of research activities in a field that falls within the core research themes of the Centre, and to work with the Director in attracting funding and developing contacts with the wider scholarly community and with the world of practice.

Conditions of employment – salary - benefits

The European University Institute is an equal opportunity employer.

Full-time professors at the EUI are appointed on a five-year contract which may be renewed for further three years. Professors are frequently able to obtain extended leave from their home institutions.

Salary

The amount of take-home salary can vary and depends on seniority, eligibility to expatriation, household and dependent children allowances. Analysing the current composition of the teaching staff members, the average basic monthly salary is approximately Euro 8,800.

Additional benefits

The Institute covers moving expenses to and from Florence (up to a maximum equivalent of a monthly basic salary) in addition to a settlement allowance calculated on each individual family situation.

Faculty members and their families are entitled to a flat-rate payment of travelling expenses from Florence to the place of origin; the flat-rate payment is based on an allowance calculated on distance.

Faculty members at the Institute are covered by health insurance administered by the Joint Sickness Insurance Scheme of the European Communities Ispra Settlements Office. An average of 80% of medical or dental expenses is reimbursed upon presentation of invoices. Some treatment (dental braces, for example) requires authorisation in advance.

There is a generous educational allowance for school or university costs of Institute members' dependent children.

Currently 8,75 percent (increasing to 10,25% in 3 years' time) of an EUI professor's salary is withheld for a severance payment scheme; twice this amount is contributed by the Institute (total monthly contribution = presently 26,25 percent of base salary –

30,75% in three years time). This can be paid into a national or private retirement scheme, or into the Institute's plan. If the latter option is selected, the amount due is paid to the EUI member upon departure.

Under the terms of the treaty establishing the Institute, EUI professors are exempt from income tax on their salary paid by the Institute anywhere in the Contracting states. In lieu of national taxes, a deduction is carried out by the Institute..

Further details on all information contained in this note are available from the Personnel Service.

The recruitment procedure at the EUI

The selection procedure at the EUI has some specific features due to our character as an international (European) organisation, and to the fact that our faculty is based on medium-term appointments with a high level of turn over.

Procedure and organs involved

Several Committees and Councils are involved in our selection procedure, which is regulated by Decision n° 2/03 of the High Council of the EUI:

- the Department of Law
- the Academic Council (all EUI professors and the President of the Institute)
- the Research Council (independent external experts in all fields covered by the EUI)
- the Selection Committee

When a chair is vacant, the Department/the Centre submits a profile for the chair to be filled to the Academic Council, for approval by the Research Council, which sets up the Selection Committee.

The composition of the Selection Committee depends on the appointment in question (i.e. a committee for one chair only, joint committee for more than one chair, or committee for a joint chair Department/the RSCAS). The selection committee is composed of professors from the EUI, external experts appointed by the Research Council, the President of the EUI (consultative voice) and a representative of the researcher students (consultative voice). The composition of the Committee is kept confidential until the invitations for interviews are sent to shortlisted candidates. They will receive further information about the composition of the selection committee.

After publication of the vacancy and reception of applications, the Committee may either draw a short list of candidates to be interviewed or turn into a search Committee, which happens whenever the number and/or quality of applications does not seem adequate.

A few weeks after having set up a shortlist, the Committee interviews the candidates and submits a recommendation of one or more candidates to be appointed.

The Committee's recommendation is transmitted to the Academic Council, which acts as a sovereign body for appointments. It does not vote on the recommendation immediately, but has one month at least (the interval between two of its meetings) to reflect upon the proposal.

At its meeting following the one where it has acknowledged the transmission of the Committee's report, the Academic Council votes on the recommendation. A recommended candidate is appointed if the majority (50%+1) of members present vote in favour.

Tentative schedule for the present procedure

In the case of the chair at present being advertised, the profile (in the advertised wording) has been approved at the May 2006 meeting of the Research Council.

The schedule we would like to adhere to is the following:

- shortlisting decisions should be made around early/mid October 2006;
- interviews are planned to take place 13 November: shortlisted candidates will receive details of the procedure for the interviews, which are usually mainly based on the applicant's research projects;
- we plan to submit the proposal of the Selection Committee to the Academic Council of December 2006;
- the successful candidate (or a reserve, should the first-ranked candidate decline) may take up service in October 2007.

Application file

Your file should demonstrate how your application covers the job description above, and it should contain the following elements:

CV: Please present your CV to highlight all elements that are relevant to the profile and job description.

List of publications: Please highlight the publications that are relevant to the profile of the Chair you are applying for. A short summary report on your past and present publications and research linked to the profile would be helpful. Please do not send in publications unless asked for.

Referees: Applicants are requested to submit four names of possible referees whom the EUI may contact. The referees may not include members of the professorial staff of the EUI. Please try to give us the names of referees who know you in both your teaching and a research functions. E-mail addresses or fax numbers are essential in order to get a quick confidential reply.

Research project: Please take great care in presenting your research project(s), which should be designed to cover a five year contract and correspond to the profile. The Selection Committees always attach considerable importance to the quality of the proposals.

The project should preferably be written in English or French, and have a length of 1500 to 2500 words approximately.

It should specify the objectives and scope of the project and give indications on the background, especially how it relates to work you have already undertaken and published. It should also give some preliminary indications about the methodology you intend to follow in exploring the proposed hypotheses or theories; guidelines; indications as to the empirical components and sources; management of the research especially its organisation and the possible running of a research team.

It should also give some preliminary indications on the type of outcome and the type of support for publication you have in mind.

Formal applications should arrive by 15 September 2006 and be addressed to the Head of Academic Service at the European University Institute, by e-mail (applypro@iue.it) or by post, Via dei Roccettini 9, I-50016 San Domenico di Fiesole (Fi).

Practical information about life in Florence

Learning Italian

The Institute's language service offers intensive Italian courses in September and less intensive courses throughout the year. Some other European languages are also taught. Florence has an abundance of private language schools.

Housing

Rents are very variable, likely figures for Florence and its immediate surroundings are: 750-1000 Euros for a one-bedroom flat and 1000-1300 Euros for a two-bedroom flat. Larger flats with three or four bedrooms run from 1300-1500 Euros, depending on size and location, and can rise to 2000-2500 Euros (villas or large luxury flats).

The Logistics Service has a Housing Office to help new faculty find suitable private accommodation. It gathers offers of private accommodation (houses, studios and rooms, generally furnished) within a radius of 10 to 12 kms from the Institute. The housing office can provide advice and language help with finding accommodation.

Where to live depends on taste, and you should acquire additional information from the Institute's Housing Office. There is much to be said for renting a casa colonica (farmhouse) in the countryside as this will ensure that you are in contact with the real Italy but it can, however, be somewhat isolated. Equally there is much to be said for living in Florence proper. There is an excellent public transportation system. Living in Florence has all the pluses and minuses of living in a medium-sized city.

Schools

For infants, there is a crèche run by the Institute near Villa Schifanoia. For young children (8 or below), the Italian system should be seriously considered if you intend to remain eight years in Florence. There is a menu of private and public Italian schools to choose from. Many State schools still have a 6-day week, which makes it tough to take weekend trips around Tuscany. Private schools are more likely to have a 5-day a week schedule. Details will vary from school to school, and your own reaction will depend on the national system that you use as a basis for comparison, but the general feeling is that in terms of quality the Italian system is satisfactory. Italian high schools (liceo) are differentiated by type (classico, scientifico, linguistico, others). They have the reputation of offering a traditional, i.e., rigorous but dry programme that gives good preparation for university.

A small French school offers a programme that goes from maternelle to quatrième included and apart from stopping at a critical age does offer a good programme that many at the Institute take advantage of. From troisième up, the liceo "Machiavelli-Capponi" has set up an international section in which some courses (like literature and history) are taught in French.

The American International School offers an elementary through to high-school programme in English. It is small (places should be reserved as soon as possible) and expensive. The high school offers the International Baccalaureate, which is recognised for university entrance throughout the world. Its American high school diploma is also recognised by the Italian government as equivalent to that of a liceo linguistico.

More detailed information about daycare and schools is available in our website at <http://www.iue.it/Servac/PracticalInformation/Children/>.

Potential applicants requiring information beyond that contained in these further particulars, or who would like to discuss the vacancy informally, are welcome to contact the Head of the Law Department, Prof. Wojciech Sadurski (email: wojciech.sadurski@iue.it).
